U. S. To Reject Red Proposal For Korea

LAKE SUCCESS, Oct. 12—(AP)—Secretary of State Marshall will tell Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov that the United States has placed the Korean question before the United Nations Assembly and will make suggestions on troop withdrawals there, an American delegation spokesman said Sunday.

This in effect would be a rejection of Molotov's proposal that the U. S. and Russia agree jointly on simultaneous withdrawal of American and Soviet forces.

The spokesman said Marshall would follow this line in answer to a note from Moscow complaining that the U. S. had not replied to a Soviet proposal for withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea at the start of next year and thus was hindering a solution.

Molotov's note was received at the State Department late Sunday. It was understood that Marshall would advise the Kremlin that the question was now in the hands of the UN and that specific American proposals would be made to the Assembly, probably late this week.

The American proposal was reported to include a section providing that the date for actual withdrawal of occupation forces should be by agreement among Korea, Russia and the United States, with UN concurrence. While still subject to final phrasing, the plan also was understood to cover these points:

1. Election of a Korean National Assembly with a UN commission on the scene as observers to insure democratic balloting in both Soviet and American zones; and
2. Selection by the National Assembly of a provisional national government, which could call on the commission for aid and support.

Sources in the American delegation previously said that the Russian move was wholly unsatisfactory to the United States because it was regarded as a step to impede action on the American request for a UN solution, and because the Russians are believed to have a well-trained force of Korean Communists in their zone of occupation ready to step into any vacuum.

Record Florida Floodwaters Isolate Hundreds of Homes

'Freak' Hurricane Swirls Into Atlantic

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 12—(AP)—A small, freakish hurricane left Southeast Florida under the highest floodwater in 30 years before its center swirled out into the Atlantic Sunday, chased by Army and Navy aerial hurricane trackers.

Damage from 71-mile winds was minor, but hundreds of homes were isolated around Miami and Fort Lauderdale by record-breaking downpours. Nathan Mayo, State Agricultural Commissioner, said "the greatest agriculture disaster in more than a generation" had resulted from the torrents dumped on the rich Everglades farming district around Lake Okeechobee, already swollen by two previous storms and almost daily rains.

Two American Red Cross ambulance volunteers were killed Sunday when the heavy vehicle with which they planned to evacuate flood victims rammed a utility pole.

Both men were Marine Corps veterans here to attend a convention. They were tentatively identified by the Red Cross as Thomas Fetele, 18, of Chicago, and James Warnock, Troy, N. Y.

Mass evacuations were carried out in the Hialeah and Miami Springs sections of the Miami area as some 5.01 inches poured upon the area during the storm at a rate as high as 1.34 inches in 10 minutes. Most of it fell within a few hours.

Fort Lauderdale, 23 miles north of Miami, had three feet of water in parts of its business district, and losses due to flood were reported high. The smaller community to the west of Fort Lauderdale, was flooded to rooftops in some instances, and five feet or more in some sections.

In an advisory late Sunday night, the Weather Bureau said the storm was centered about 235 miles east of Palm Beach, moving between northeast and east northeast at about 13 miles per hour.

Syrians At Border, Haifa Says

JERUSALEM, Oct. 12—(AP)—Jewish informants in Haifa reported Sunday night that Syrian troops equipped with some armored cars and other heavy weapons had arrived and encamped near the Palestine frontier in an area adjacent to 15 Jewish agricultural settlements.

The sources quoted Jewish settlers in the area as saying some of the troops were concentrated near the Syrian villages of Kuneitra and Banias just north of the finger of Palestine which juts into Syria and Lebanon.

Arab troops patrolling the Palestine side of the frontier and units of Hagana, self-styled Jewish defense army, have been alerted, the informants added.

Mrs. Golda Myerson, a former resident of Milwaukee, Wis., now with the Jewish Agency Political Department, said she had telephoned all the Jewish settlements in the area, and had been informed there were no reports of incidents or clashes.

The informants said some of the Syrian patrols had passed "quite close" to the Palestine border. The Jewish settlements were reported to have been alerted, and observers were said to have been posted.

90-FOOT DROP

Girl Rescued After Fall From Cliff

LURAY, Va., Oct. 12—(AP)—Plucky, 21-year-old Mary Murphy, of Washington, D. C., was alive Sunday night after tumbling 90 feet from the top of Crescent Rock in the Shenandoah National Park and then directing a team of forest rangers to her rescue.

Chief Forest Ranger Robert Gibbs said the young girl was sitting on top of the high ledge with two of her sisters when she "leaned over and disappeared." Her body caught on a ledge 90 feet below.

Miraculously, she escaped with a broken arm. Forester James Van Weelden, patrolling the nearby Skyline Drive, arrived a few moments later to find the two girls frantic over their sister's plight.

Weelden and Gibbs, with the help of four other rangers who arrived later, fashioned a rope ladder and a sling from a ranger's raincoat and for two grueling hours worked their way across the face of the cliff to her rescue. Hidden behind the rocky ledge, the rescuers were guided by the girl's voice.

Atlanta Real Estate Men Divided On Proposal To End Rent Curbs

Attention of Atlanta housing men focused on Washington Sunday night following a proposal at the Capitol to wipe out rent controls next Spring and an announcement that a Federal survey of the nation's slums was underway.

An end to rent controls after Feb. 29, 1948, "is the next imperative step to lick completely the housing shortage," a subgroup of the National Association of Real Estate Boards said in Washington Sunday.

Alexander Summer, of Teaneck, N. J., Chairman of "The Realtors' Washington Committee," will recommend to the National Association that efforts be continued as necessary to see to it that rent controls end as provided in the act, modified Rent Control Law.

In Atlanta, however, Ed Chapman, President of the Atlanta Real Estate Board, said the local realtors' group had not yet taken any stand on whether or not rent controls should be continued in force.

A spot check of several Atlanta real estate men showed a division of opinion. Some felt controls should be lifted to spur building which they say threatens to bog down because of rising building material costs in which further increase of 10 percent looms as a result of increased railroad rates.

Several others pointed out, however, that complete removal of rent controls might create an intolerable situation, and suggested an additional five percent increase in rents be granted.

Summer indicated that his Committee had made its decision primarily because of recent statements "of a few Congressmen that Congress may consider extending control beyond the expiration date."

Sen. McCarthy, Republican, Wisconsin, said Saturday, "I would have no objection to extending rent controls" beyond February if Housing Expediter Frank Creedon continued to be guided by local rent advisory boards.

McCarthy praised Creedon's action.

'SPECIAL' STAMP DISPATCHES SNAKE IN POST OFFICE 'DELIVERY' SECTION

Acting with the usual dispatch of the U. S. mails, a snake was speedily, and fatally, "stamped" at the New Post Office here Sunday, and sent on its way to the reptilian hereafter. Appropriately enough, the action took place in the Special Delivery section of the Post Office.

The reptile, a highland moccasin, was found at the bottom of a heap of packages at 7 o'clock Sunday morning. Guy F. Broughton, Negro, of 201 Randolph St., N. E., who was helping sort the packages for delivery, said the snake was coiled on the concrete floor, apparently set to do battle.

Broughton's foot beat the reptile to the draw. The snake apparently entered the building in a shipment of shrubs or flowers, Broughton theorized.

Proper Care for Mentally Ill Seen If AMA Accredits Jones Hospital

By BOB LEWIN

Constitution Staff Writer

MILLEDGEVILLE, Oct. 12—Adequate medical care for patients at the State Hospital was in sight here Sunday, following announcements that the State Hospital would seek to have Jones Hospital accredited by the American Medical Association.

A conference of State officials, headed by Acting Gov. B. B. Hinson, stated Saturday the dire need for internes could be overcome by endeavoring to have Jones Hospital, part of the general hospital plan at Milledgeville, brought up to AMA standards. At present internes will not apply for training there because it is not recognized by the AMA.

The plan envisions the use of many internes from the University of Georgia School of Medicine at Augusta and from Emory University. With this in mind, the conference, attended by some of Georgia's leading medical men, announced it would appoint a Jones Hospital superintendent within a few days. He will be instructed to raise the hospital standards immediately so that internes available next June can train here.

"We hope to get many internes if we can have Jones Hospital accredited when the AMA meets in February," Thompson stated. "And this is only the first step in a long-range plan to raise medical standards in Georgia," he added. "If the accrediting comes through it will mean we'll be able to get nurses here, too," Thompson said.

In addition, the Acting Governor announced he hoped the Board of Regents would work out a program for the training of an increased number of physicians, through expansion of professional school facilities. "The raising of medical standards is a long-range plan. We are getting started on it immediately, and are going to push it as much as we can."

State Welfare Director L. E. Groves voiced the possibility of having the central hospital building at the institution meet staff requirements of the Medical Association, become accredited, and then let the internes work from it. For the entire institution to be accredited a staff of several hundred doctors would be necessary, an impossibility due to lack of funds.

At the present, 16 doctors care for 9,115 patients. Internes will enable patients to receive better care than this small staff can now provide.

Dr. Y. H. Yarbrough, State Hospital Superintendent, says the hospital needs twice as many doctors as it now has. Efforts to obtain additional staff members have failed, while others leave the institution to accept higher-paying jobs.

Attending the conference, in addition to Groves, Thompson and Yarbrough, were Dr. Lombard Kelly, of the University of Georgia School of Medicine, and Dr. Hugh Wood, Dean of the Emory University Medical School.

IT HAS SOUNDED ITS OWN STORY...

Historic and Gallant Corregidor Returned To Philippines by U. S.

CORREGIDOR, Philippines, Oct. 12—(AP)—As the strains of the Star-Spangled Banner rolled over the topside parade ground of this once-doughty fortress at the mouth of Manila Bay, the Stars and Stripes were gently lowered at 12:15 p. m. Sunday for the last time.

With soldierly snap, 1st Lt. John Buczek, of Blue Island, Ill., and a color guard of the U. S. Army's Philippine Scouts, folded the flag and gave it to Capt. Vincente Alhambra, of the Philippine Army.

A Philippine color guard then slowly hoisted the golden-sunbed red, white and blue garrison flag of the Philippine Republic while the band played the Philippine national anthem.

For the first time since the Spanish took it over as a fortress in 1793, Corregidor was again in Filipino possession.

There was a lump in every American throat as the crowd of 400 invited guests witnessed the brief, reverent ceremony.

Among them were 30 survivors of the heartbreaking five-month siege and fall of Corregidor more than five years ago, including its commander in war and in the peace, Maj. Gen. George F. Moore.

Most of them assented as Sgt. Gustave Rosenfelt, of Philadelphia, remarked, "If it was me, I wouldn't turn it over; I'd keep it for a memorial."

Actually, in signing the formal transfer, U. S. Minister Nathaniel Davis said that at some future date the American and Philippine Governments planned to erect a memorial to those who fell defending the three square at the mouths of its guns.

The Philippine Government will use the remains of Malinta Tunnel to store small arms and ammunition, and various other projects have been suggested. American defense bases remain elsewhere in the Philippines, but Corregidor's days as a fortress are ended, out-matched by modern methods of war.

In accepting the transfer, President Manuel A. Roxas said, "The American flag was lowered this time in victory, a victory of democracy, of justice, of love of freedom and unyielding devotion to the cause of peace all over the world."

He recalled that Gen. MacArthur long ago had said, "Corregidor needs no comment from me; it has sounded its own story erect a memorial to those who fell defending the three square at the mouths of its guns."

When you park in this lot to do business with First Federal you can have your parking check stamped for One Hour Free Parking.

This is again a "first" for First Federal in providing you with a convenient and safe method to save and invest money.

They give you the four essential requirements for a successful, profitable savings program: safety, attractive returns, availability and convenience.

The First Federal is managed by experienced local men who conduct the affairs of the association under United States Government supervision. In addition, the safety of your savings is fully insured up to $5,000 by an agency of the United States Government.

You save and invest in the First Federal with confidence! The earnings of the association are distributed to investors semi-annually either by check or allowed to accumulate with the original investment. Earnings at the prevailing rate make your savings dollars grow quickly.

Written in their Charter is a liberal provision for converting your investment into cash without penalty or inconvenience. Your savings are not tied up for indefinite periods when you invest at the First Federal.

You deal with home people who are available at all times to discuss your individual problems with you. Their office is conveniently located so that you may come in and inquire as to how to invest small and large amounts.

You can always be assured of a free parking space at 42/Auburn Ave., N. E., at BILL'S Parking Lot, one-half block from their office.—Adv.

were raised in a campaign in that area last Spring. Construction will start as soon as details can be worked out and approved by the directors. The hospital will be built on a three-acre tract on the University of Georgia Medical School campus donated for the purpose last year by the Board of Regents.

L. S. Van Pelt, Jr., Director, and Sidney Smith, Exalted Ruler, of the Elks in Augusta, are the committee.

J. Clayton Burke, of Atlanta, was re-elected President and Executive Director of the Crippled Children League, which supports the 68-bed Aidmore Hospital in Atlanta.

Also re-elected were: Francis M. Daves, Decatur, Secretary; Georgia R. Rusk, Decatur, Treasurer; Wayne Hinson, Waycross, Chairman of the Board, and John B. McCollum, Columbus, First Vice Chairman.

Dr. W. S. Haile, of Fitzgerald, was elected Second Vice Chairman.

Burke also was elected a trustee of the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults, with which the Georgia League is affiliated. He and Robert L. Eitinger, Superintendent of Aidmore, will attend the National meeting in Chicago in November.

Chairman Hinson appointed Edward A. Dutton, of Savannah, and McCollum, to serve with him on a three-member Executive Committee as provided by by-laws amended and adopted at the meeting.

The by-laws also provided that the Board of directors meet with the officers of the League quarterly, instead of annually, because of the expansion of the League's State-wide program.

'GREATEST MAN OF HIS TIME'

South Honors Memory Of Dynamic Sam Jones

By GEORGE BOSWELL
Constitution State News Service.
CARTERSVILLE, Oct. 12.—Revealing an unpublished phase of the life of Sam P. Jones, Cartersville's great evangelist, whose 100th anniversary was observed by the church bearing his name in an all-day celebration Sunday, former Sen. Thomas J. Hefflin, of Alabama, praised the part played by Mrs. Jones in "turning her husband from strong drink" to paths of service to mankind.

Sen. Hefflin, intimate friend of the evangelist, having been born within 10 miles of Jones' birthplace at Lafayette, Ala., told how the great churchman grew to young manhood in Alabama and later moved to Cartersville, where he was admitted to the bar and practiced law for two years before turning to the church.

Mrs. Jones' influence on his life was the factor which converted him finally to evangelism. A master of biting sarcasm, Jones had constant conflict with elements of the population because of his refusal to compromise the principles of the Bible, the Senator said.

He used names and minced no words in fighting for upholding his teachings. Sen. Hefflin added that Tom Watson, late Senator from Georgia, declared that "Sam Jones was the greatest man of his time."

Sen. Hefflin's address was one of the highlights of the celebration, which attracted an overflow crowd to the Sam Jones Memorial Church. Among the church dignitaries taking part on the program, which lasted throughout the day and included an old-fashioned basket dinner on the church grounds, were Dr. F. N. Parker, Dean Emeritus of Emory's Candler School of Theology and friend of Jones; Dr. W. F. Quillian, and Bishop Arthur J. Moore, of Atlanta.

Hundreds of people from throughout the South filled the church to overflowing, and by means of a loud speaker system, the proceedings were brought to added scores of people seated in the basement and on the grounds of the church.

The Rev. George O. King, Pastor of the Sam Jones Memorial Church, who arranged the observance, presided over the morning program. Dr. Wallace Rogers, of Atlanta, presided over the afternoon program.

Dr. Rogers declared that Jones was as great a humorist as Will Rogers and as great a speaker as William Jennings Bryan. He pointed out that the Lord gave Jones a voice and vigor which no other American has ever equalled.

A window to the memory of Mrs. Jones was dedicated during the afternoon program. The memorial was presented by Mrs. Walt Holcombe, daughter of the evangelist, and was received by Dr. H. B. Bradford, of the Sam Jones Board of Deacons.

The Rev. Walt Holcombe gave a brief summary of his new biography of Jones, "A biography of Sam P. Jones," which will be released early next year.

Miss Frances Harvey, Cartersville High School student, was awarded first prize in an essay for students on the life of Sam Jones. Sam Jones began his career as a circuit rider in 1872. He spent eight years preaching to the people of Bartow, Jasper and Floyd Counties. His first evangelistic meeting was conducted at Nashville in 1885. This met with such success that Jones was hailed as the greatest religious orator of the generation. From this time until his death in Oklahoma City in FOUR HUNDRED WAITERS...

Duchess of Montoro Weds Irujo in Colorful Ceremony

SEVILLA, Spain, Oct. 12.—(P)—The Duchess of Montoro, 21, daughter of the wealthy Duke of Alba, was married Sunday to the fourth son of the Duke of Sotomayor in Sevilla Cathedral.

The ceremony was witnessed by the largest gathering of the wealthy and titled of Spain since the heyday of the Spanish Monarchy. However, no representative of Generalissimo Francisco Franco was at the ceremony, and it was reported that Spanish newspapers had been forbidden to carry photographs or stories of the wedding beyond formal notices.

The Duke of Alba, a supporter of Don Juan, pretender to the Spanish throne, was dismissed by Franco from the Cortes, Spanish Parliament, in February, 1946.

The bridegroom was Luis Martinez Irujo y Artazcoz, 26, who served at a lieutenant in the Nationalist Navy during the Spanish Civil War.

He and his bride were expected to go Sunday to one of the Alba estates in Sevilla Province, after which they will go by plane to London and sail on the Queen Mary for a honeymoon cruise to New York.

The Duke of Alba was reported to have allocated $370,000 for the wedding and festivities accompanying it.

The ceremony was already in progress before some 2,000 invited guests when the crowd broke through a police cordon and thousands entered the Cathedral, largest church in Spain. Once inside, the crowd watched the service quietly.

The bride wore a white satin gown copied from the gown worn by the French Empress Eugenie when she married Napoleon III. The Duchess wore jewels estimated to be worth $1,000,000.

Four hundred waiters served the guests, with those at the main table eating from the Duke's gold and silver service.

At the conclusion, the groom handed the Duchess the traditional symbolic dowry, in this case a green cotton sack containing 18 gold coins minted under Philip II, Sixteenth Century King of Spain.

Four hundred waiters served the guests, with those at the main table eating from the Duke's gold and silver service.

646,000 Votes Cast in Rome City Election

ROME, Oct. 12.—(P)—An estimated two-thirds of Rome's 969,774 registered voters participated Sunday in a city election, latest test of strength between Premier Alcide de Gasperi's Christian Democrats and political parties of the far left.

The election, second for Rome since the republic was proclaimed in mid-1946, was to fill 90 Council seats. Only one incident was reported — a Communist-Christian Democrat scuffle. Saturday night a Christian Democrat youth was killed in a pre-election clash.

Observers generally had agreed that a heavy vote would benefit the Christian Democrats.

The Ministry of the Interior announced after the polls closed that about 646,000 persons had voted. Ballot boxes were seized Sunday night and counting was to start in the morning.

Food Saving Espoused By Religious Groups

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(AP)—Fresh support for President Truman's save-the-grain campaign came Sunday from religious groups. Fast-talking Charles Luckman, Chairman of the Citizens' Food Committee directing efforts to squeeze out another 100,000,000 bushels of grain here to help feed Western Europe, appeared to have a strong chance of gaining an industry-wide 60-day whiskey shut-down. Distillers will give their final answer at a meeting here Monday.

The Food Committee called for a distilleries shutdown Sunday night with a distillery union threat to sue the plant owners for damages if they close.

The announcement came from Joseph O'Neill, President of the AFL Distillery Union at San Francisco, who telegraphed President Truman and other officials protesting the plan.

O'Neill said the savings of grain would be insignificant and that thousands of Americans would be thrown out of work. The union also said its strategy includes plans to fight any shutdown with court proceedings and would demand "stand-by pay."

On Capitol Hill, Sen. Revercomb, Republican, West Virginia, held up a warning finger. He said the Government's grain buying has forced prices up and that grain shipments to Europe "definitely should be reduced to the big export program push prices still higher in the United States."

Revercomb did not mention the conservation drive. He said he had no specific cut in mind. He blamed "big profits" too, for high prices.

"The Government must stop bidding against the American consumer," the Senator counseled. "Of course, we want to aid Europe, but our grain purchase program must be geared to the needs of the people of this country so that there will be no want right here in the United States."

Three religious groups—Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish—bailed the conservation drive and promised to back it. They are:

1. The B'nai B'rith women, estimated to number 100,000, whose President, Mrs. Abram Orlow, Philadelphia, said that all chapters are being directed to offer local conservation committees "total support."

2. The Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A., whose pastors and officials will be asked to enlist aid of the members. Dr. William Borlough, clerk of the General Assembly, said it is "as much a religious duty as a political and economic measure."

3. Catholic officials who said their people will co-operate. Europe's need is "really appalling," said the Most Rev. John T. McNicholas, Archbishop of Cincinnati and Chairman of the Administrative Board of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, and "preparation must begin now if relief is to be effective. Our people will respond wholeheartedly. I am confident, to the noble appeal of our President."

Luckman will confer Monday with the American Restaurant Association as well as the distillers. The full committee will meet Tuesday.

At least 23 of the 39 major distillers, to whom Luckman proposed the 60-day holiday last week, already have voted to comply.

Savings of more than 10,000,000 bushels, or 10 percent of this country's deficit of exportable grain for winter use in Western Europe, were expected from the distillery industry's move alone.

But in restaurants and homes, so far as could be ascertained, co-operation was far from 100 percent. December wheat prices rose Saturday to a new all-time high of $2.95 a bushel, and—despite a start on meatless, poultryless and eggless days—the price of meat, eggs and butter declined only slightly.

Luckman has sent telegrams to the mayors of all cities of 10,000 population or more, making the same request as another step in meeting the "grave emergency confronting the hungry people of Europe."

Atlanta Pilot Airs Views On Topsy-Turvy Flight

Lt. W. M. McCarron, Jr., a Naval Reserve air pilot, of Atlanta, who was one of 48 passengers on the huge American Airlines plane which suddenly began flying topsy-turvy more than a mile over the El Paso, Texas, airport last Wednesday, believes that the acrobatics which the ship went through were of the same sort which had sent other four-motored craft crashing in recent months.

He described the antics as having resulted from a "whip stall"—which is a sudden steep climb out of normal altitude—and said that if the ship had not had the altitude, the pilots never would have been able to pull it out.

Recent airliner crashes resulted from planes flying at less altitudes than the 8,000 feet which the American Airlines plane was flying.

"Luckily," said Lt. McCarron, "we had three pilots aboard and they all three joined in the successful attempt of righting the plane. As it was, they didn't get it right side up until we were some 200 to 300 feet from the ground."

Lt. McCarron was en route to San Diego, Cal., to fly a Navy Corsair back to Atlanta. He returned with the plane Saturday.

He said the airliner flew upside down only about 30 seconds, during which time women prayed, children screamed and everybody thought his "number was up."

One passenger, after the plane landed, said he had had enough. He cancelled out for the rest of the flight, saying that he was catching a train.

Lt. McCarron lives at Dunwoody.

7-MONTH SHOW Greater NYC Sets Golden Jubilee in '48

NEW YORK, Oct. 12—(AP)—A miniature World's Fair to commemorate the Golden Jubilee of the incorporation of the five boroughs into Greater New York City, is planned for 1948, it was announced Sunday.

The seven-month celebration will begin in April and preliminary plans call for displays marking progress in science, education, industry and other fields during the 50 years since the incorporation.

There will be an international air exposition, fashion show, municipal mobilization demonstrations by firemen, police and other municipal groups and various additional events designed to call attention to the theme of the jubilee—the City's "Achievements of Yesterday, Leadership of Today and Opportunities of Tomorrow."

Lights that give off a golden glow will be installed on main highways in each of the five boroughs.

Exhibits will occupy 84,000 square feet of space in Grand Central Palace in the heart of Manhattan. An overhead ramp will connect the palace with a side walk above the center of Park Avenue.

The moving sidewalk will carry visitors up the Avenue from Forty-sixth Street to Fifty-second Street past outdoor displays. From Fifty-second Street to Fifty-seventh there will be an elevated exposition hall for more indoor exhibits. Both the hall and moving sidewalk will be high enough in the air to permit regular traffic on the Avenue.

The City provided $25,000 for the preliminary study, made public Sunday by Grover A. Whalen, Chairman of the Jubilee Committee. The Committee estimated the exposition will cost $1,836,750 and revenue will total $2,850,000. Net profits will be devoted to promotion of the City. There will be a 50-cent admittance charge to Grand Central Palace. The rest of the how will be free.

China Nationalists Repel Red Forces In 'Deciding Battle' in Manchuria

PEIPING, Oct. 12—(AP)—Communist forces, charging in the heaviest of the present Communist offensive, and Government forces, repelling the Manchurian railway town of Tieling in wave after wave Sunday, but Chinese Government forces held out under strong air cover, Nationalist dispatches reported.

The battle, its outcome still in balance, was described as the greatest of the present Communist offensive, and Government forces, repelling the Manchurian railway town of Tieling in wave after wave Sunday, but Chinese Government forces held out under strong air cover, Nationalist dispatches reported.

Tieling, meaning "iron ridge," is 40 miles northeast of Mukden on the railway to Changchun. Situated where the railway runs along the Liao River, it is regarded as the northern gateway to Mukden.

Sizable forces were reported engaged on both sides, with the Communists relying on massed artillery for their principal punch while the defense was stoutly bolstered by repeated sorties of Government strafing planes.

Changchun, the Manchurian capital 135 miles farther northeast, was virtually isolated but reported all quite as the season's first snow blanketed the countryside.

Yingkow, Government supply point on the Gulf of Liaotung, 115 miles by rail and 100 by air south of Mukden, was still locked in battle, with the small Government Navy supporting the garrison.

Pro-Government correspondents mentioned engagements in the Yingkow suburbs, apparently attempting to give the impression that Communists who last week penetrated the port had been dislodged. This was not specifically claimed, however.

Other Government accounts said the hot battle also was in progress at Hailin, a junction of the Manchurian and Inner-Mongolian rail systems 70 miles west of Mukden. The town was said to have changed hands "many times, with its immediate status uncertain."

Should the Communists be able to hold it, they could hamper Government reinforcements moving into Manchuria from Jehol on the west.

Despite the flaming battles, Government dispatches generally exuded confidence and dwelt on Communist casualties. One said the attackers already had lost one-fourth of their total strength since they invaded the Government's Manchurian corridor a fortnight ago. At that time Government quarters estimated Communist troops to total about 300,000.

Government armies were declared to be largely intact and still fighting defensively while awaiting the time to spring a counter-offensive.

The Communists retained the initiative, however, and in China proper again cut the Peiping-Hankow railway north of Peiping. Shipping on the Yangtze River near Nanking was instructed to sail along the south bank to avoid the Communist raider Gen. Liu Po-Cheng, still roving deep inside Government territory.

GOOD NEWS AT LAST—Mrs. William B. Hopkins and her son, R. Wilburne Short, of Washington, are happy after reading an Associated Press story saying her husband, a radio operator in the Navy, and two others, Horace Crosby and Leonard Metts, of Charleston, S. C., were found aboard minesweepers missing in the Pacific since Sept. 24. They were cut loose from a tug which went to Palmyra for refueling and left to drift pending its return. Short is her son by a former marriage.

6,000 LOOKED ON

Once Fanged, Girl, 13, Holds Rattler Again

STONE CREEK, Va., Oct. 12—(UP)—Thirteen-year-old Fay Linn, her right hand still blue and paralyzed after a "miraculous" recovery from snakebite and gangrene, fondled the rattlesnake which bit her while 6,000 persons watched Sunday atop Little Black Top Mountain, 50 feet inside Kentucky.

More than 80 members of the snake-handling faith healers' cult gathered on the mountain top for five and one-half hours of preaching, climaxed when they wrapped 17 rattlesnakes and copperheads around their necks, twined them through their hair and put them inside their clothing.

The child, bitten last month at a similar meeting, returned to "vanquish" the snake which fanged her. When gangrene infected her swollen hand, her parents whisked her away from their home in the cult's temple at Cavewood, Ky., and hid her from doctors for a recovery on faith alone.

Half a dozen Virginia Highway Patrolmen arrived to enforce the State's anti-snake handling law, but the cultists stepped over into Kentucky.

British Communists Okay New Comintern

LONDON, Oct. 12—(AP)—Britain's Communist Party has voiced approval of the new nine-nation Communist organization and said it would co-operate by intensifying a "campaign to rally the labor movement and democratic opinion for a reorganization of the government of Britain."

Vets Plan To Honor Returning War Dead

American Legion officials of Georgia's Fifth District joined with other veteran groups here Sunday to plan the sad task of honoring the District's returning war dead during the long months to come.

Bodies of 12 men from the Fifth District who were killed in the Pacific were among the first to land in the United States Friday, and are expected to arrive at the Conley Ordnance Depot this Friday or Saturday.

A Committee of seven Legionnaires, headed by Fifth District Commander Sam S. Johnson, was given authority to call on the District's 26 Legion Posts for firing squads, pallbearers, chaplains and other personnel for families requesting the Legion to handle or assist in funeral services.

Johnson said he or his representative would call personally on the families of the war dead, offering the Legion's services.

Requests by families for participation of Jewish War Veterans, Disabled American Veterans or other veteran groups will be passed on to the group's representative.

Bowles Named To UN Committee For War Children

LAKE SUCCESS, Oct. 12—(AP)—Appointment of Chester Bowles, former United States Director of Economic Stabilization, as Chairman of the International Advisory Committee for the United Nations Appeal for Children was announced Sunday by UN Secretary-General Trygve Lie.

Norwegian UN Delegate Aake Ordning suggested to the UN Assembly last year that one day be devoted throughout the world to raising funds for children who have been victims of the war. The proposal was adopted by the Assembly.

The drive, to take place early in 1948, will be conducted by committees in all the participating countries.

Envoys See Crisis Near In France

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(AP)—A French economic crisis now seems certain, in the opinion of American diplomatic officials, to catch the United States in the position of doing too little too late.

The break may come this week. Officials continued over the weekend their efforts to find some way of providing the French with enough emergency dollars to avoid a threatened stoppage of all French dollar purchases of wheat, fats and coal virtually on the eve of French municipal elections.

Informants, who withheld their names, told a reporter the outlook for doing this was bleak and the best which could be hoped for might be an arrangement to keep a minimum quantity of supplies moving into French import channels.

There was some hope, for example, that certain unspent reconstruction credits held for France by the Export-Import Bank might be diverted to the immediate industrial purpose of supplying coal to the French.

France has told the State Department that it will run out of dollars for badly needed wheat, coal and fats purchases about Oct. 15, three or four days before the elections set for next Sunday. A wave of strikes has struck the nation.

The whole situation is understood to have been brought to the attention of President Truman, together with an estimate of its possible political effects.

Diplomatic authorities here are reported to be concerned not so much over the possibilities of substantial gains in Communist strength as over what they conceive to be the possible weakening of the "moderate" French political forces now in power by inroads of both Communists and the new political movement led by General Charles de Gaulle.

Undersecretary of State Robert Looney denied at a news conference last week that French Foreign Minister Bidault had urged the United States to make a new shipment of wheat to France immediately before the elections.

The latest expression of Washington's intentions came from President Truman who told a news conference recently that the Government "was taking all possible steps to help France."

One informant added that whatever the Government finally decided, the situation it probably would act without dramatic effect or good timing.

Methodists Visit Children's Home, Pledging Funds

Members of Methodist churches throughout Georgia visited the Methodist Children's Home in Decatur Sunday as a drive was officially opened to raise $200,000 for much-needed additional facilities.

The Rev. B. C. Kerr, Superintendent of the Home, said enthusiastic shown by church members and friends during the visit indicated that the fund campaign would be successful.

The home already is caring for 121 boys and girls, Rev. Kerr said, but unable to accommodate more until more space is provided. He said one of the most urgent needs is a building for infants.

Rev. Kerr explained that the money raised during the campaign will be used for the construction of a dormitory for teen-age girls, an infants' cottage, repairs and renovation of present buildings, and for maintenance.

The home endeavors to provide more than just housing, food and education for the children. Its goal is to give each child normal home life.

Border Area Votes To Join France

TENDE, Oct. 12—(AP)—Residents of the Brega and Tende Districts along the French-Italian border voted overwhelmingly Sunday to become part of France.

The Italian peace treaty awarded the districts to France. However, the French Constitution forbids the acquisition of territory without the consent of its inhabitants.

The districts are valuable because of their hydro-electric plants.

Ship Hits Reef; Five Drowned

POWELL RIVER, B. C., Oct. 12—(UP)—The bodies of three small children and two women for a total of five passengers were found Sunday night lay trapped in the submerged stern of the passenger vessel "Gulf Stream," which rammed full speed into a huge rock off Mystery Reef in Queen Charlotte Sound, 10 miles north of here. Nine other passengers and 22 crewmen were rescued from the wave-lashed top of Dinner Rock by two fish-packing boats a few minutes after the vessel crashed into the rock.

The frightened survivors leaped from the "Gulf Stream's" slanting deck onto Dinner Rock and clung to its slippery surface until the "Betty L." and the "Ivanhoe" pulled alongside for the rescue.

The two boats rushed them to Powell River, where seven passengers and three crewmen were being treated for cuts, bruises, shock and exposure. None was in serious condition.

The salvage vessel "Salvor" was en route from Vancouver, B. C., with Diver George Unwin, who said he would dive for the bodies at dawn Monday.

Military Weakness Disturbs Officials

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(AP)—The high commands of all three armed forces—Army, Navy and Air—say they are gravely disturbed about their diminishing man power.

Recruiting for the services is said to be running far below the levels necessary to keep the armed forces at authorized strength, in some cases as much as 20 percent too low.

The Navy, which customarily is in a better recruiting position than the Army, is getting only about 80 percent of the needed number of recruits on the basis of latest figures. Navy officials estimate they need about 15,000 men a month. The Army, which also carries on the enlistment for the Air Force, gained about 21,000 men in September, compared with a hoped-for total of about 30,000. The Army has a present actual strength of about 960,000 compared with its authorized force of 1,070,000. The Navy currently is somewhat above the average strength figure authorized for the current fiscal year but the rate of discharge compared with enlistments will drop it below strength under the present trend, officials said. The Navy strength, in men and officers, is about 477,000 compared with an average 437,000 figure for the fiscal year.

The Air Force is understood to be between 70,000 and 80,000 short of its 391,000 authorized strength, a part of the 1,070,000 total for the Army.

An intensive effort is under way to build up another vitally important component of national defense, the National Guard. Like the regular establishments, that, too, lags far behind requirements. Compared with a goal of 682,000, the National Guard has a current total of only 141,096. Defense officials, however, are encouraged by the guard recruiting campaign in which 22,169 have been signed up since the campaign started on September 16.

High Army officials said they are still able to keep up the required man power required by Gen. Lucius D. Clay in Germany and Gen. Douglas MacArthur in Japan for occupation duties. But, they added, the point is being reached where the drain on man power in the United States to keep those forces at strength is threatening to upset the man power pool here required to support the overseas forces through furnishing supplies and service.

The closing out of the Italian occupation area under terms of the recently signed treaty is helping the European situation some. While the majority of the 22,000 troops on duty in Italy are being returned to the United States, a portion of them, mainly officer personnel with less than one year overseas duty, is being sent to Germany for keeping the occupation forces at strength.

Published figures indicate that present strength, Army and Air, in Europe outside of Italy, may number less than 150,000.

Officials are at a loss to explain the serious slump in recruiting. But, said one high ranking officer, the nation must be made to realize that not only will an inadequate military and naval force impair occupation duties abroad and defense at home but may be a factor in the diplomatic efforts of the United States. Foreign nations measure the will of a people in international affairs by the interest of the people in their military establishment. The status of military strength thus becomes a definite factor in diplomatic bargaining.

HURRICANE

The project "Cirrus," said if the storm was found to be "suitable," they would go through with the test. "The result of this will lead us to further accomplishments in efforts to break up a hurricane," Scientists were to watch the test with intense interest since none could foretell what might happen to the hurricane when the pellets are seeded into the storm's clouds.

An Air Corps official said the Army and Navy had 10 planes tracking the storm to study the effects of the icing, he added: "There aren't enough planes and pilots in the United States to reduce a hurricane's potential by five percent by dropping dry ice." Two B-17 planes left Mobile, Ala., for MacDill Field, Fla., to join a B-29 which was loaded with the dry particles.

Altgether 31 men were to participate in the field study, Rex said.

Floodwaters stood three and sometimes six feet deep in large areas of Greater Miami and Ft. Lauderdale as the storm passed out to sea.

Hurricane warnings were lowered on the Southeast Florida Coast, and the area enjoyed one of its few bright sunny days since the Sept. 17 hurricane.

Storm warnings were up from north of Vero Beach to Daytona Beach, but were expected to be lowered as the storm moved away from the peninsula.

The winds apparently did little damage as the hurricane swept across Florida from below Everglades City on the West Coast to just above Miami before passing out to sea. No casualties were reported. Miami had sustained winds of 71 miles an hour.

A series of small tornadoes hit Miami during the storm, wrecking two buildings, unroofing a couple of others and lifting trees out of the ground.

The Miami Springs and Hialeah communities in Northwest Miami were under water, some six feet deep. Families were evacuated from many homes Saturday night. The Miami Springs Municipal Golf Course, known to thousands of Winter tourists, was covered with water.

Miami's International Airport, one of the busiest in the nation with planes on routes to and from Latin America using its runways, was covered Saturday night, but the water receded and it was back in use.

Miami recorded the heaviest rainfall since 1925, as 1.34 inches fell in a 10-minute period, and more than four inches in less than four hours. Buses to outlying communities were blocked by flooded streets. Night clubbers and theater patrons walked the streets in bare feet, carrying their shoes. Stalled cars created a traffic problem.

Water covered U. S. Route 1 at several points between Miami and Fort Lauderdale, but was receding. Cars moved through at occasional pace.

High water again threatened the hard-hit Lake Okechobee farming region, where flood waters from the September hurricane, a later small storm and almost daily rains since, had begun to drop. Lamar Johnson, Chief Engineer for the Everglades Drainage District, declared it possible the entire farming area around the lake would be covered with water, but "it is too early to make any definite predictions as yet."

The big fresh water lake was up more than a foot and still rising, but the U. S. Army Engineers said there was no chance of the big dike giving way.

Smaller dikes in canals in the region, which caused recent floods by breaking, were expected to collapse under the pressure of more water.

paster had worked perfectly. The "bugs" had been in getting the proper tensions on the long ribbon of paper flowing through the units.

But, late Saturday night, the flying paper—at least we think that was it—suddenly got out of adjustment by a slight degree. The papers printed at the time of the pasting have a tab automatically attached to them so they may be pulled out and the subscribers won't get a faulty paper. Somehow, these papers with the pasted ends in them, became jammed in the mechanism which folds the sections and puts them together. The presses, running at high speed, were halted immediately, but too late to prevent the breaking of the mechanism folding the papers.

This caused a delay of several hours and a cessation of the printing while the damage was repaired by putting in the one spare on hand. Others were ordered and the Hoe Company will ship them today. Meanwhile, we think we have the problems solved and there will not be any more delays. We hope so, because we are proud of the overall record across the years of giving you your paper on time.

Anyhow, we wanted you to know exactly what happened and why your paper was late. We feel complimented by your interest, but we don't like to get complaints that way. And, again, we are sorry if you had trouble getting an answer. The 14 trucks lined simply were not enough to handle the rush of calls. We want to thank also the pressmen and mailing room crews, who worked hard and without complaint many hours past their usual quitting time.

The moving will continue. In a day or so I think maybe you might be interested in how we plan to move the linotype machines, themselves intricate pieces of mechanism.

Real soon, in two or three weeks, we hope to be completely moved. When we are you will be invited to an open house to see the new Constitution building, one of the most modern newspaper plants in America and, a great many persons have told us, one of the prettiest.

Thank you again. We sincerely hope there will be no more trouble.

SLUMS

tion in approving a local board's recommendation for a five percent blanket rent increase in the Louisville, Ky., area. Various tenant groups and labor union leaders have protested it, saying they feared a national pattern of rent boosts.

Summers statement on ending rent controls said:

"The present building boom . . . began immediately with the lifting of most Federal restrictions. The next logical step to complete the wiping away of the housing shortage is rent decontrol. Extension of control would continue the artificial market in which rent at housing, the only commodity obtainable at prewar prices, is overconsumed to the extent that it has thrown our whole economy awry."

As for the slum survey, Sen. Wagner, Democrat, New York, disclosed that he had asked the Mayors of all cities of 50,000 population or larger, all Governors and other persons concerned, for data on provision of decent housing for low-income families now living in slums, and on clearance of slums for private and public redevelopment.

Wagner said he had undertaken the slum survey as his assigned part of the joint Senate-House housing probe, and had mailed out 750 questionnaires seeking data, including reaction to a proposed Federal Government program to bear two-thirds and local communities one-third the cost of urban development.

In Atlanta, Mayor Hartsfield said he would turn over Wagner's request, when it is received, to the Atlanta Housing Authority with instructions to furnish all the data required.

Hartsfield added that approval of any government subsidized housing project would depend upon revenues the city would derive and also upon the city's ability to share in the cost.

He asserted clearing Atlanta's slums would cost "many millions," but that the City was within a million dollars of reaching the limit of its bonded indebtedness.

John A. White, Chairman of the City's Slum Clearance Committee, said Government subsidy of new housing would dovetail with the slum clearance plan he was advocating.

"We have a new ordinance, we have the personnel and we have the money," he said. "We have 34,000 substandard dwellings to bring them up to standard and keep them that way during the next five years," White said.

Construction of 6,000 additional units to replace those which had been cleared and uninhabitable could be handled by Government or by private enterprise without conflicting with his Committee's objectives, White said.

Wagner's request also asked for a report on existing Federal assisted, low-rent housing. States and communities are asked to estimate the share those agencies could pay on any slum clearance or low-rent or low-cost housing projects.

to keep a close watch on the Syrians. Last Thursday the Arab League Council in a meeting at Beirut, Lebanon, voted to cordon off what it called "terrorist organizations and Zionist forces" in Palestine by moving troops from the Arab countries to the League up to the boundaries of the Holy Land.

A Beirut dispatch quoted a civil attack of the Lebanese War Ministry as saying two companies of Lebanese troops were moved near the Syrian-Palestine frontier Thursday for maneuvers. The attack, who visited the area, said the Lebanese soldiers were stationed in the mountains about 15 miles from the actual border.

A Cairo dispatch told of Arab troop movements from the south. This account quoted a spokesman of the Moslem Brotherhood Association as saying the vanguard of a Brotherhood army of 10,000 men had reached Rafa, a Mediterranean port on the Egyptian-Palestine border. This informant said the group was part of what he called a "Save Palestine Army" trained by Egyptian officers who fought in World War I.

Send Europe Excess Ships, Says Brewster

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(UP)—Sen. Owen Brewster, Republican, Maine, said Sunday that he will urge Congress to give hard-pressed European nations 20,000,000 tons of war-built American ships, "now rusting in our ports," to reduce the cost of the Marshall Aid Plan by perhaps $10,000,000,000.

He pointed out that the 16 Western European States covered by the Marshall Plan have included 22,000,000 gross tons of registered shipping in their rehabilitation needs.

Brewster said the United States spent $20,000,000,000 building ships during the war "of which the great bulk is rusting in our ports."

"If we are going to assist in the rehabilitation of their merchant marine," he said, "it would be better to do it by turning over the ships, rather than by contributing steel or dollars. Such an arrangement would cost us practically nothing."

Brewster advanced his proposal as a special government committee headed by Acting Secretary of State Robert A. Lovett prepared to receive a first-hand account of the European economic plight from Sir Oliver Franks, of Great Britain, Chairman of the Committee for European Economic Co-operation, and six other delegates from the committee.

The seven came here at the request of American officials to define how the recent Paris Conference on the Marshall Plan decided that Europe needs $22,440,000,000 in outside aid.

Korea was promised its independence under wartime commitments of the great powers. When the Japanese were driven out, the country was divided between the United States and Russia and the problem for the last two years has been how to withdraw under conditions acceptable to both powers.

Russia has insisted on limiting representation in any Korean region to groups which have not opposed the temporary administration by the two countries. The U. S. has maintained that such a formula would exclude democratic groups entitled to consideration.

U. S. Position and Semitic Kings

Back in 1945 the smart set in Cairo, Egypt, were laughing at a "bon-mot" by the gay young King, Farouk. "In a few years," he said one night, at one of his famous parties, "there will be only five kings in the world—the King of England and the four in a deck of cards."

"There will always be you, Your Majesty," said a young thing with whom he danced, and the son of Fuad I smiled contentedly. He was but jesting.

As the Arab, or rather the Semitic, countries gather, threatening at the borders of Palestine, it is well to recall that for the most part it is an array of Kings who protest the partition of Palestine, as has been recommended by an Allied committee and endorsed by the United States, in a historic statement Saturday before the United Nations and to which even the Soviet States have given tentative commitment.

Four Kings stand in opposition.

There is Farouk, who would like to remain King of Egypt, and be elected also as head of the Moslem Church for all the Semitic Moslem world.

He is the key to the whole problem of Palestine. With him are aligned hawk-eyed and majestic Abd al Aziz ibn Saud, from Saudi Arabia, honest in his stand, without the smile the others possess; young King Faisal, of Iraq, and Abdullah, once Amir of Trans-Jordan, but now its King, since the British granted that stretch of sand and river and nomadic people its status as a nation. And with him, too, is the Imam of Yemen, almost a King, and the governments of Syria and Lebanon.

But what holds them all together as Semitic peoples opposing another, is the fanatical Moslem religion, and the growing flames of nationalism which allow no man in the Middle East to be devoted for the symbol of peace.

But Farouk, the chunky, slightly weary, young sophisticated and King of Egypt, can make the Moslem house fall apart and reduce the threat of war to mere border raids and some few street riots and looting, if he wishes. He is a shrewd young man, as are most of the wealthy and ruling Egyptians. He is not Egyptian. He descends from an Albanian in the service of the Turks, the famed Mahomet Ali, who led the revolt against the decadent Turkish Empire. He is intelligent and he will weigh carefully the decision of this country, of the Soviets and of the British before he commits the tribes and his own army, together with Trans-Jordan's British-trained Arab Legion, to war.

His mind is a wrestling match in which ambition struggles with the weight of great nations thrown against him in Palestine. He has planned, and progressed in his plan, to become the leader of all Islam. That is why he has given refuge, and money, to the Grand Mufti, the old rascal who heads the Moslems in Palestine and who joined with the Nazis against the Allies in the recent war, and to Abd el Krim, the legendary old Semitic who led the revolt against the French in North Africa in the years after World War I.

Yet if his ambition has not too slippery a body, reality may pin it. There are enough domestic problems for him to solve. The government, and the one he wants to remain in power, is shaky. The old parties, the Saadists, the Wafd and the Liberals are not strong. The Wafd is the strongest, but it cannot control. The Moslem Brotherhood, made up of students and workers, fanatically religious, violently anti-foreign and anti-liberal, is growing and all the ruling classes and the old line parties are worried. There is not enough land, there is too much disease, there is too much misery, and it is no time to go to war unless war would solve the other problems. And it will not. Also, there is Russia.

Farouk and his decision are world-important.

Much, besides partition, depends upon it.

And Keep Them Out

The drive against loan sharks in Atlanta was given additional impetus with the indictment by the Fulton County Grand Jury of additional persons and companies charged with collecting outrageously high interest rates.

Moreover, additional indictments may be expected.

More and more citizens who have been defrauded by unscrupulous lenders are going to Sol. Gen. Paul Webb and giving details which should result in convictions.

It is our hope, in this connection, that no American citizen will be intimidated into not reporting any violation of which he may be aware of the State's one and one-half percent per month maximum interest law. The Solicitor's office is in a position to offer assurance that such revelations will be held in complete confidence if desired.

Having been so successfully begun, there is no reason why the campaign should not be carried on until every loan shark in the metropolitan Atlanta area has been driven out of business.

Once that is accomplished, we hope the responsible authorities will provide whatever continuing vigilance is necessary to keep them from becoming re-established, it being extremely illogical that the Solicitor's office should be forced to resort to perennial campaigns to clean up a recurring situation which should never be allowed to exist in the first place.

Pegler's Spade

Editor Constitution: I take the view, as one of your readers, that we as citizens of our country have a moral right to refuse the fifth which Westbrook Pegler is constantly trying to force down our throats.

Franklin D. Roosevelt was elected president three times, showing the love and faith which a great majority of citizens had in him and the laws which he advocated.

Westbrook Pegler has again been using his spade in Roosevelt's grave and thinks he has found the cause of high prices. Has he forgotten the last depression caused by the Republican party? Has he forgotten the time when Roosevelt first ran for office? Millions of men who were out of work and literally starving begged him upon their knees, "For God's sake, do something!" to bring those good times here which were supposed to be just around the corner. No man ever lived who could satisfy every soul.

Washington failed, Lincoln was cursed, and even Christ himself could not satisfy every one. Only an angel from Heaven could do what Westbrook Pegler expected our late president to do.

He should remember that a great majority of our citizens still believe in the doctrines which our late president stood for and his name will be revered long after Pegler and his spade are things of the past.

Register Weapons?

Editor Constitution: I wish to protest your carrying the thoughtless editorial from the Elberton Star advocating the registering of owners of guns and pistols. Many of your readers take editorials as facts instead of merely one man's opinion. I am sure the opinion of millions of farmers, people living in isolated sections as well as sportsmen, differs greatly from that of the editor of the Star.

Does the editor believe that all criminals secure firearms from legitimate sources? Does he believe that criminals would register the guns in their possession? Does he know that an important source of arms for criminals is the U. S. Armories? Should these be removed or destroyed? Does the editor advocate removal of firearms from places of business? (An Atlanta man recently shot and killed one of two men attempting to rob his place of business.) Does he know that a schoolboy constructed a serviceable machine gun in a simple workshop? (Couldn't a criminal do the same?) Are there "gun toting" thugs in New York? New York has a very stringent law against firearms. Should we eliminate the automobile, as they are also used by criminals in committing crimes?

Even if criminals had no guns they could still kill and rob. There are no ways to eliminate clubs and rocks.

As you see, this is a touchy subject with me. I resent any interference with my sporting permits just as many others would if I touched them. Would baseball bats be licensed? They could be wicked weapons.

Freedom Train

Editor Constitution: The touring of the Freedom Train throughout the United States will make us more conscious of the debt we all owe to the great men who founded this Republic; and perhaps engender in us a keener appreciation of those who have struggled to sustain and perpetuate the principles upon which our freedom rests.

In this connection, I suggest that the time the train is in each city and town be made the occasion for re-dedicating ourselves to the maintenance of the United States Constitution and its amendments.

As evidence of our faith and loyalty, let means be provided for every citizen who views the Freedom Train exhibits, to voluntarily swear "I am not a Communist."

As there will be many loyal citizens who will be unable to come to the train, I suggest that in convenient places, such as post offices, banks, hotels and department stores, notaries be stationed, before which loyal citizens could voluntarily swear "I am not a Communist."

I feel sure the Federal, State and City Governments and the heads of institutions and establishments would favor this suggestion and would make available the necessary facilities and personnel. And the newspapers, I have no doubt, would give the desired publicity to make "Loyalty Days" popular.

Truth Can Do Its Own Work

Truth does its own work... if truth can make itself known.

That is why I long have been working and arguing that this country was failing in duty to itself by not going fully into a foreign information program which would let the truth about us and our actions be known to the world.

I had seen, during the war, our information centers crowded with people in foreign countries eager to see educational movies; thirsting to read our books, magazines and any newspapers they could find... all wanting to know about the United States.

I sat one whole afternoon in Istanbul, Turkey, in an information office and with the aid of a Turkish woman who spoke English, assisted Turkish children with themes on the general subject of the United States.

I saw, what every person who has been in France or Britain could see, that the fact those countries received news regularly from the United States, did not contribute to any balanced picture of this country for a very good and obvious reason—namely, that the editors who received it could use only a little of it and selected that which would best contribute to the sale of their newspapers. They selected Hollywood news, divorces, crimes, race riots, lynchings and so on.

Yet, to the amazement of many Americans, there actually were newspaper and news agency men who seriously argued that such news did paint a true picture of this country. Even more amazing, they tried to find some threat to freedom of press when the news that was proposed to be sent to the world would be news they themselves had collected.

It was this distressing and provincial outlook which prevailed in the Senate to prevent a much watered down bill, urged by Sec. Marshall, from passing.

All that was proposed was that this country tell what the Marshall Plan meant—that it say what we had in mind with the letting of the Greek loan; that we are not seeking any territory; that we do not wish in the slightest to use our aid to Europe to get control of the governments, that we are interested in peace, that our record shows we have always been slow to war and have gone in only as a last resort when the safety of our own people and the liberty of peoples everywhere were in danger.

Name-Calling Now, with the Comintern (a short word for Communist International) formed and with the Moscow propagandists hourly and daily telling the world that we are warmongers; that we seek imperialistic expansion; that we wish to grab and dominate the world; that we are a greedy, ruthless, warlike people, we are face to face with the fact that we can answer back only in a feeble whisper.

You would think that a nation willing to spend billions on the chances for peace, would spend a few millions on telling what it is doing in an effort to establish a peaceful world.

But with all the phoney voices shouting about a threat to a free press, we didn't get it.

But now, I think, the Soviets have played into our hands.

The Comintern will make it clear, as it was clear all along to anyone wishing to see.

Value Georgia's veteran Congressman, Eugene Cox, has come back from Europe.

He saw the effect of Russian propaganda.

He puts it this way:

"We spend more than $100,000,000 on a battleship. No battleship could produce as much help for this country as an information program, well-directed, which would pound home the truth—not name calling—to the rest of the world, and especially Europe and the Middle East."

It is a further significant fact that none of the opponents of the measure have been to Europe without changing their minds. Those who are unchanged have stayed at home and, presumably, stopped their ears and refused to let their minds accept visual evidence.

Truth does its own work. We don't want to call names. Or to cry, "You're another!" That isn't the answer. Truth is.

If we will let the world hear the facts about us, if we will let them read at least representative newspapers, books and magazines, if we will keep the radio news going to those countries which refuse to admit our educational films and printed matter—we can stop the Soviet advance.

Who builds the tractors of the world?

And what have they to do with propaganda?

Who is seeing foreign-made tractors?

Tomorrow I want to do a chapter on that.

Every British Child May Climb to Top

The idea that the Horatio Alger tradition is exclusively, even predominantly, an American heritage is one of those fallacies which needs correcting. The belief that only in America is the "rags-to-riches" saga common leads to misconceptions about the ways of life in other countries. And such misconceptions are among the factors which create international misunderstandings.

The opportunity for a successful career for the boy born in poverty, with no trace whatsoever of the silver spoon in his mouth, is at least as good in Britain today, for instance, as it is anywhere in the world.

There are numerous living examples in British life today.

For instance: Sir Frederick Burrows, who rose to be Governor of Bengal, began as a railroad porter. Lord Nuffield, one of Britain's greatest automobile manufacturers, started by running a small bicycle shop. Lord Hyndley, Chairman of the National Coal Board, is the son of a poor clergyman and his first job was as a clerk in a coal mining area. Charles Dukes was once a common laborer, but became Chairman of the Trades Union Congress and received a peerage.

In the Cabinet Among members of the Cabinet, Harold Wilson, President of the Board of Trade, won his education through the public schools and by scholarships. Ernest Bevin started as a farm boy. Mr. Morrison, son of a policeman, was first an errand boy, then a shop clerk. Lord Inman, now Lord Privy Seal, began as a newsboy and bottle washer. And there are others.

The boy in Britain gets a good start through special rations for expectant mothers and young children. Proper nourishment for school children is assured through free milk and the school meals service. All children receive free medical care before and during school years. After they leave school the proposed National Health Service will continue this.

No youth in Britain today need lack the finest education his talents and capacity permit because of financial difficulty. Nor need any "work their way through" college and thus impair their studying ability.

There are innumerable scholarships and, if these do not suffice, the Government itself will give financial aid to cover both tuition and maintenance.

Vocational education is provided through free technical schools and evening classes. Also through Summer schools at the universities and extra-mural organizations.

Providing Jobs And, when the education is completed, the Government again helps the individual to find the job for which he, or she, is best fitted, through the successfully operated Employment Exchanges and "Appointments Office Service" operated by the Ministry of Labor. These two agencies cover all types of employment and position, both in manual work and professional.

Their objective is to provide everyone who is willing to work with a job and to see that the applicant is placed in the type of work for which he is best suited and which will bring to him the best opportunity for advancement.

Referring again to the schools, both grade school and high school are absolutely free to all children. Also, all equipment, all textbooks, are furnished without cost. And, as said, there is ample scholarship and Government aid in higher education so that purely financial obstacles to a university career have been entirely removed.

The British boast, rightfully, that opportunity is there for all, regardless of economic circumstance of the individual.

It is, we must agree, something worthy of pride.

BILLY ROSE

An Open Letter to Joe

Mr. Joe Stalin,

Kremlin,

Moscow,

Dear Uncle Joe:

A couple of weeks back, Comrade Boris Gorbachev wrote a piece for a Moscow gazette in which he compared President Truman with Hitler. To prop up his arguments, he quoted several Americans, including the distinguished expert on sawdust and sauerkraut, B. Rose.

Smack dab in the middle of his blast, Boris quoted me as saying, "If we are going to have a comedian in the White House—let's have a good one."

I jumped when I read this. I knew that somewhere our wires had gotten crossed. I remembered your sealed instructions handed me by Operative K-9—"Work quietly. Not even paid-up members must know we entrusted you with the territory between 53rd and 55th Streets."

By publicly hooking me up with the Kremlin, Comrade Gorbachev was handing me the work I had done to ingratiate myself with the Tories. "Someone is going to get his knuckles wrapped for this," I told myself.

BUT BEFORE writing you, I thought I'd better take a look at the column from which Boris had quoted. I found it next to an old Crackerjack box in the bottom drawer of a secret file. It was an open letter to Carroll Reece, the Republican National Committee Chairman, and it had been released Oct. 18, 1946. In it, I suggested the GOP could win the next election by nominating W. C. Fields for President. (The great man was still alive at the time.)

I pointed out that our favorite clown was uniquely equipped for the White House, and I wound up with the crack Comrade Boris latched on to. Actually it wasn't much of a joke. Both the Wall Street Journal and the Daily Worker had beaten me to it.

Shortly after the New York papers republished Gorbachev's article, I was invited to (a) throw out the first adjective at the opening of a new soap box in Union Square, (b) become recording secretary of the Beekman Place cell, and (c) finance a play in which Trotsky was saved from a fate worse than death by the Five-Year Plan.

I think you ought to get Gorbachev into the basement of the Liubanka and give him a good talking to. Boris should be warned against exposing the stomach on which Molotov has stamped "Top Secret." In addition, it might be well to point out to him that the technique he used in the anti-Truman piece is pretty corny. This business of quoting a line out of context isn't fooling the American moujik any longer. When a show gets a bum set of notices, you can no longer bamboozle theatergoers by quoting isolated phrases and adjectives from the reviews. The capitalist newspapers refuse to run such ads. Moreover, the courts have decided that lifting a line to distort its meaning is in the same class with peddling uranium-plated bricks.

NOW THAT we have announced the re-establishment (sic) of the Comintern, I think your publicity boys had better watch their releases. I sense a growing allergy around here to anything pink. Eleanor recently replaced her pink note paper with baby blue. A reactionary corporation is running ads warning people against pink toothbrush. Recently a cunning outfit put out a new brand of salmon—white meat. It gathered dust on the grocers' shelves until every can was relabeled. "This salmon is guaranteed not to turn pink."

Yours for the revolution,

BILLY ROSE.

JACK TARVER

The Customer Is Always Right

Two New York gunmen paused in the midst of a recent stickup to squeeze orange juice for their victims' squawling baby.

The mother could get along without her jewels, they probably reasoned, but the kid had to have its vitamin C.

The accommodating second-story men even removed the seeds from the juice before presenting it to the baby. Police are searching for a family-type criminal.

Whatever the trend on the international scene, on the local level at any rate we seem to be getting a more considerate variety of thug.

They still ask for your money or your life, but it sounds better when they add: "Pretty please."

Yessir, courtesy is the keynote of modern crime. Even the toughest hoodlum these days removes his hat before beating up old ladies.

Chivalry isn't dead. It's just on the lam.

The Steel Industry Answers

WASHINGTON—The bitter debate which has been intermittently in progress between the managers of steel industry and their Government and labor critics will no doubt soon come to a boil again. The Council of Economic Advisers is expected to submit a report to the President which will be highly critical of "unimaginative" steel management. The battle will reach its height during the next session of Congress. Since it will rage loud and long, it is worth trying to understand what it is all about.

The views of the steel industry's critics, of whom the chief sparkplug is a Government economist, Dr. Louis Bean, have already been reported here, together with a conversation between the Council of Economic Advisers and Mr. E. M. Voorhees, Chairman of the Finance Committee of United States Steel. In brief, the economists argue that the steel managers are content to limit expansion, to take high profits out of high prices now, as a sort of hoarding against a future depression. It is argued further that in failing to expand their industry in keeping with the prodigious postwar expansion of the American economy as a whole, the steel managers have made a future depression almost inevitable.

THAT IS ONE side of the coin. The other side of the coin, as argued with conviction by Mr. Voorhees and his associates, might fill a fair-sized book. But here is an attempt briefly to summarize their main points.

1. "The steel industry has no power to create depression or prosperity." That depends on the ultimate consumer—the man who buys a car or his wife who buys a washing machine. They, not the steel managers, decide how much steel is produced. "Would the 1929 crash have been avoided if steel had greatly expanded?" Moreover, Voorhees and his associates argue cogently that Dr. Bean's neat charts of the relationship between employment and steel capacity are demonstrably phony, based on a logarithmic trick which would horrify any competent statistician.

2. None of the Government economists say the steelmen, troubled to consider the real meaning of the vast expansion of steel capacity which they demand. Even if it were miraculously possible to increase steel capacity now as much as 10 percent—which it is not—the effect would be disastrously inflationary. The already hard-pressed construction industry would be drained, and steel prices themselves would be forced up, since it takes steel to make steel. Moreover, the industry is already expanding at top speed consistent with any reasonable economic theory. And the fact that the billion-dollar expansion program is already six months behind schedule illustrates the kind of difficulties which the Government economists so lightly brush aside.

3. The industry is not "hoarding." The steel industry in general, says Mr. Voorhees, "is spending more money for replacement and expansion of productive facilities than it has provided currently for wear and exhaustion of present facilities plus all the income it has after paying the usual dividends to its owners."

4. By any fair test, the steelmen say, steel prices are low. It can be demonstrated statistically that they are far lower than prices in any other important segment of the economy by comparison with prewar. Moreover, Mr. Voorhees gives a review of his statements on steel prices before the Council of Economic Advisers which differs from the version previously reported here. He was reported to have said that the steel industry could have absorbed last Spring's wage rises "as long as the industry continued to operate at 90 percent of production." According to his records, he was first asked whether the industry could absorb the increased costs if it were to operate at 80 percent of capacity. He replied, "no." Asked about 90 percent, he answered that "that was a different matter, and he could not be sure about it."

These, then, in too small a nutshell, are the views of a representative spokesman of the steel industry. One who has heard both sides of the debate, which "will no doubt grow increasingly heated, is left with two impressions. First, the economists, absorbed in their charts and their statistics, are undoubtedly inclined to overlook the pressing practical problems which confront the steel managers. And second, the steel managers, absorbed in their immediate business problems, are also inclined to underestimate the real political meaning to this country of a period of mass unemployment. Surely in strict self-interest, if for no other reason, it must be the overriding objective of industrial management, as well as of the government, to do whatever can be done to avoid a repetition of the thirties.

"Vishinsky again blasts American statesmen, postponing the settlement of important issues."

We must admit we do not know why all of these orations Continue in a ceaseless flow from those United Nations— While we are hoping for the best and patient in our waiting Some local lad or foreign guest is busily debating.

It seems each foreign diplomat who comes across our border Is well prepared to go to bat with "Roberts' Rule of Order," To get the floor and make a speech that's filled with strife and hating Until the weary listeners reach the point that's nauseating.

Someone thinks of a peaceful plan and rises to propose it, But argue it as best he can, until Molotov vetoes it. His arguments are pretty strong, yet he's not a superman. He's merely been with us so long he thinks he's Harry Truman.

If someone suggests adjournment of this meet we have a notion There wouldn't be much trouble getting seconds to the motion.

Uncle Sam Encourages Informers

You will probably be as surprised as I was to learn the important part played by the ordinary, common, or garden variety of snitch in the operation of one of the branches of our Government, namely, the collection of U. S. Customs at the port of entry. Under the Tariff Act, the Government pays 25 percent of moneys collected in duties, fines and penalties to informers who peach on returning U. S. travelers who think they can outsmart their Uncle Samuel by smuggling a chunk of square-cut ice through the lines in their overcoat pockets.

Probably you were already aware of this morsel of bad news, but what I'll bet you didn't know is that there exists an outfit in New York which advertises in the foreign press for stool pigeons, promising them the full reward without deductions plus complete protection for turning in larcenous-minded travelers.

IT IS CALLED the "Protective Bureau, Jewelers Vigilance Committee," with offices located at 17 West 45th Street, New York, and in the Paris edition of the Herald Tribune it advertises as follows: "HEAVY PENALTIES Await Jewel Smugglers—Smuggling jewelry, diamonds, pearls, precious stones, watches, etc., into the United States is dangerous. Rewards for information are large. Penalties are heavy. Under the prevailing Tariff Act, 25 percent of the net amount recovered by the U. S. Government, but not over $50,000 in any case may be paid to any person who furnishes original information which leads to the recovery of any duty withheld, or any fine, penalty or forfeiture incurred."

"FULL REWARD—information relating to the smuggling of jewelry may be sent by letter, cable or wire to this office. The full reward without any deduction, will be paid the person furnishing the information. His name will not be divulged to anyone. All information will be filed in the name of this organization."

WELL, we will not go into the moral problems propounded here.

OH, NO? There is only Armand, Pierre, Jean, Mimi, and Albert, salesmen, cashier, auditor, wrapper, buyer, etc., plus sundry others on the staff of the jewelry house that sold Glutz the bauble. One or all will have read the tempting message from the Jewelers' Vigilance Committee. It's worth an airmail stamp, isn't it? So the Guardian on the Pier asks Mr. Glutz if he has anything to declare. "Who? Me?" says Joe innocently. "Just a couple of bottles of small water and some shirts I bought myself."

And the customs guy is just loaded for him. "Okay, brother. Now we'll have a look at that diamond necklace you bought on Aug. 18 at 3 o'clock in the afternoon at the Whistis Shop in the Rue Poopsy-Doopsy, for 25 grand, with the pearl and platinum clasp. Give!"

If Joe had been honest and declared, the snitch would have been out the price of a stamp. This way, he, she, or they collect a packet because by the time our Uncle S. has finished slapping duties, fines, penalties and assessments Brother Joseph is right back where he started from financially.

"Not Responsible For Wife's Debts"

A young man came rushing into the Clarion office the other day and wanted me to print an ad—"right quick"—saying he won't be responsible for his wife's debts from now on, as he's leaving her for good immediately.

I allowed as how the forms were all closed up, and it was too late to take his ad. He says: "All right, Monday then"—and we agreed on Monday.

Of course, the forms weren't closed. But I had kind of an inkling of what might happen. Then Sunday day he phones me, and says, kind of sheepishly: "You can forget that ad. Me and the missus have everything all patched up. And we're having a friendly glass of beer, right now."

From where I sit, if you give folks time enough to think things over, those hasty quarrels that come so often from misunderstanding will give way to tolerance and common sense.

HAROLD L. ICKES

Jerry-Built Commission

Mr. Herbert Hoover was President of the United States from 1929 to 1933. The executive agencies during that period were a congeries of overlapping bureaus and agencies. They spent money extravagantly, they fought an internecine war among themselves for more power and for more money. And what did Mr. Hoover, as President, do about it? He made only a few motions, although there was a statute on the books giving him power to exchange and consolidate agencies. This law expired by its own terms shortly after President Roosevelt was inaugurated in 1933. But it might have been possible for him to have done some of the reorganization that should have been done and which was not done.

Because Mr. Hoover either did not know how to reorganize the Government when he was President, or was unable to do so, he is now hailed as an expert in administration. He has been named Chairman of a heterogeneous commission to present a plan for the more efficient and economical functioning of the executive department. He has been given another opportunity to guess the answer. And he has guessed the answer. He should guess right this time. It may be taken for granted that the Congress, following its customary pattern, will refuse to put the plan into effect. The real trouble is not administration. There are more favors and jobs if the machine operates inefficiently and wastefully. It would not long so operate if the Congress wished otherwise.

Going back to the days of Theodore Roosevelt, there has been a continuous plan to make the executive machine run better. Successive Presidents have been just as conscious as was Theodore Roosevelt, that the executive branch was a four-cylinder motor jerkingly sputtering in its waywardness. One of the first things that Franklin D. Roosevelt did was to set up another commission to evolve a plan to which an indifferent and wasteful Congress might be willing to give effect. Moreover, Franklin Roosevelt's commission was not such a hedge-podge, as has now been set up under former President Hoover. It consisted of three experts. The Chairman was Louis Brownlow, and the other members were Prof. Charles E. Merriam, Chairman of the Department of Political Science of the University of Chicago, and Dr. Luther H. Gulick, a man, who had done such an outstanding job in government reorganization in New York.

IF MR. HOOVER were really trying to do a good job, he would recommend that a firm of experts in administration and management be employed. This firm would have no political connections. It would be charged with the duty of studying the various reports of prior commissions that lie mouldering in a somewhat extensive graveyard. After studying these reports, while at the same time making a cold-blooded appraisal of the executive branch of the Government, it would be asked to make a report which really would make it possible to run the Government more efficiently and more economically. But, neither the Hoover Commission nor the Congress can be expected to take such a simple action.

Since we have a political commission, we may expect a political result. Mr. Hoover has been in politics for many years. He knows now that he cannot hope again to be our chief of state, but it is natural that he should look for public acclaim and this means newspaper headlines and editorials as well as vocal praise by the right people. That he realizes that this new job is a political one is proved by the fact that his first act was to appoint Larry Rickey as his Special Assistant.

Mr. Rickey knows nothing about administrative efficiency. After all it is nothing that can be bought in a can in a "self-service" grocery store. Mr. Rickey once served as secretary to Mr. Hoover in the White House. Since the rout at Waterloo in 1932, Mr. Rickey has continued to serve Mr. Hoover as his political scout and liaison man. Moreover, the flavoring of the Commission is distinctly political. It is balanced between the two major parties and, as is usual with political commission, there is an attempt to offset business with labor and the farmer with the capitalist, while providing representation for women and racial and religious groups.

NO ONE knows better than I how greatly needed is a nonpolitical reorganization of the Federal Government, but what Theodore Roosevelt, President Taft, Woodrow Wilson and Franklin D. Roosevelt failed to do cannot be accomplished by Mr. Herbert Hoover who, for four years, was content, as President, to muddle through the morass that then as now constitutes the executive branch of the Government. Even if his jerry-built commission should present a worth-while plan, the Congress would hamstring it.

WESTBROOK PEGLER

How It Was Done in Olden Days

NEW YORK—Larry MacPhail served 17 years in the baseball industry and, from first to last, was known to the laity as a picturesque, even turbulent, fellow. There is a form of noblesse oblige on the sport side of our honorable profession which forbids us to spell out the reasons why such a one socked another. But, after years and years, that shrewd, salty fellow, the man on the street, begins to wink and smirk and the secret is all over town.

So now the mystery of MacPhail is revealed and we find that our picturesque, outspoken, uproarious fellow is just another copy of the same nosy nuisance who is tolerated by the owner, the help and the clients at the corner saloon until, finally, he throws an ashtray through the back-bar mirror and the old man takes him by the slack of the pants and heaves him out for good.

NOW THE World Series is both an athletic, or sporting, and a social feast on our calendar. The athletic, or sporting, phase is public; the social phase is confidential. During the long rebellion against the foul amendment, the Volstead Act nowhere was mocked with more ardor and determination than in the corridors and cells of the retired and discarded players, managers and scouts of the World Series. The result was an annual convention of the National Political Conventions held one year in four.

THE METHOD of the World Series has been a constant New York in three old autumns of golden memory when the Giants and the Yankees were playing at the Polo Grounds, the main festivities were discarded in large rooms at the Commodore. Auxiliary brawls were held at the old Waldorf and the Martinique on Broadway. The arena at the Commodore was more or less exclusively for the working press, and the other rooms were for the "sporting" element. From here to San Diego, Tommy Laird used to come unfurling from San Francisco, Fred Digby from New Orleans and welcome and pleasant strangers from Havana, Caracas and Honolulu, which, roughly, was an Oriental place in the Philippine Islands, near Hong Kong.

These were the early years of prohibition and yet some genial hand spanked his palms together and dozens, maybe hundreds, of cases of soothing bourbon, Scotch and gin happened to occur. There was a pathetic feeling in those times that every bottle of potable stimulant probably would be the last that ever could be had in the United States. The result was an ignominious hogwashness. Decent men and women often overloaded in a sad effort to emulate the squirrel who tucks the acorns in his jaws.

ADMISSION to the falling-down, or rejoicing, rooms provided for the press and provisioned by some nameless benefactor was by card and badge, the same which were required for the press-coops at the Polo Grounds, but many of us were caught between our manners and our humanity, so a guest, having passed inspection at the gate, would borrow one, or several, badges and badges from colleagues already within, and go into the highways and byways collecting friends forlorn in hunger and thirst and lend them wherewith to crash the gate.

On the off chance that they were parties to this enormous hospitality, I salute the memory of Capt. Til Huston and Col. Jake Ruppert, then the owners of the Yankees, and John McGraw and Charley Stoneham, of the Giants, all of them erstwhile. Captain Huston had special and separate social premises in the Martinique, the Giants, as such, had a social room in the Waldorf, and McGraw had a suite which was especially special. The Giants were a political club, involved with Tammany, and McGraw, who was a holdover from the really rowdy days when ball clubs were excluded from respectable hotels, had a special set of friends. He was a man of MacPhail's temperament and chemi-

Creatures Of Habit

The man who knows most about the behavior of apes said in his book that man is born without instincts, but develops them throughout his life.

If that is true, an instinctive act is one done without thinking. The body is directed by the subconscious mind and attends to some familiar business without help from the conscious mind and without its knowledge.

The most familiar example is that of dressing in the morning. Most people dress hurriedly while thinking of other matters. A man troubled by some business problem may dress, shave, eat breakfast and start his car without once thinking of what he is doing.

He is like a man in a trance, or one who is hypnotized. He has done the same things in the same way so many times that each movement has become a mechanical habit, requiring no more thought than the act of breathing. He is guided by self-made instincts.

BIRDS come from the shell endowed with the ability to construct a nest—to weave it or sew it and plaster it. One South American bird hangs her nest from a slender limb that is strong enough to support her young until they are full grown, but not strong enough to support any one of her common enemies.

Instinctive knowledge and skill are necessary to the survival of creatures that cannot think as man does, and the ability to develop instincts may be helpful to man. But as he grows older, and his instinctive abilities increase in number, he is likely to find himself in a rut, guided chiefly by habit, and seldom conscious of what he is doing.

We say he is absent-minded, and make countless jokes about him. There was the college professor who prepared for bed; raised the window; turned back the bed covers; then slipped in bed and jumped out the window.

BUT the subconscious mind doesn't make such mistakes. It learns the routine of any often-repeated action and thereafter directs it without error, so long as the conscious mind doesn't interfere. In other words, you may make a mistake if you stop to think, but habit follows established routine. That is what keeps well-trained soldiers steady under fire.

Being absent-minded is not funny, and may easily become tragic. The conscious mind, if too little used, may become absent permanently.

The only safeguard is to keep out of a rut by doing new things or old things in new ways.

SENATOR SOAPER

CONGRESS is like a wife. It's a relief when it leaves town, yet a time comes when it must be recalled to avert disaster.

LIKE the "Smoking Forbidden" sign in the old story, Gen. Ike says no but not positively.

JUNIOR having bathed himself after the first corner-lot football workout of the year, it becomes necessary to give the soap a good scrubbing.

There was litigation between McGraw, Stoneham and Magistrate Francis X. McQuade, a third partner in the Giants, which disclosed violence far more exciting than the real-life violence among MacPhail, Dan Topping and Del Webb of the Yankees of this day. The directors of the Giants opened their meetings with Gobboons at point blank and closed them rolling down the stairs like brawling beetles behind a barn.

It is a melancholy thing, I tell you, to read that MacPhail staggered over a table in one of the World Series autopsy rooms to act unseemly in the presence of some journalists "and their wives."

"Their what?" I asked myself and read again. Yes, it said "their wives."

So it has come to this.

IT HAD not come to this the year that William Slavens McNutt, known thereafter as the caved-in man, had his incident with a scrawny party named Knott, of the New York Times. Mr. McNutt announced in the rejoicing room that he would sing.

"When you say that, smile," said Mr. Knott, with a sneer.

Mr. McNutt roared and then suddenly lay still. Mr. Knott was never seen again at that World Series, and the legend grew that he had left town believing he had killed Bill McNutt.

Mr. Knott explained later that this was incorrect. "I was afraid," he said, "that Bill McNutt would kill me."

Mr. McNutt, on his part, related that there was a gap in his recollection.

"I said I would sing and the next thing I knew I was puzzled to see so many shoes walking around way up there. Then with the keen brain of the trained observer, I saw it all. They weren't way up there. I was way down there."

CHANNING COPE

New Grazing Combinations

We are still talking about winter grazing and how to achieve it, hoping to make out a case for the perennials. We started off talking about Kentucky 31 fescue grass as the perennial winter grass of greatest possibilities and discovered that we must discuss the other winter grasses and legumes in order to show the advantages of perennials.

Looking back on these previous columns, we note the absence of any mention of Italian ryegrass. Let us hasten to say that the combination of ryegrass and crimson clover makes a wonderful grazing crop through the winter (if gotten in early and well fertilized) and is one of the best combinations. But both the clover and the ryegrass are annuals and need to be replanted each year if they are to furnish the best winter grazing. (And this is what we are after, winter grazing.)

THIS BRINGS us to the possibilities of winter grazing on Kudzu or sericea lespedeza lands, a new practice proven satisfactory by the S. C. S. Experiment Station at Watkinsville. Wild winter peas and Oregon common vetch are broadcast on Kudzu and sericea fields in the late summer. The Kudzu is grazed thoroughly or mowed late in October and this gives the vetch an opportunity to come on through. Later the wild winter peas sprout and furnish the grazing early in the new year.

The same is true of the combination on sericea. The sericea is combined for seed or mowed for hay, late in the season, and the winter crops come through as suggested above. Once these winter crops are established, they volunteer each succeeding year. The trampling of the livestock does not injure the sericea or the Kudzu land, the residue is made use of, and practice is a splendid one from many angles.

THERE IS no reason to believe that crimson clover or mangel-worm clover will not achieve the same result if handled in the same fashion. But in the case of mangel-worm clover, the bur must make contact with the ground if it is to grow. Some method must be employed by which the seed is pressed or scratched into the ground.

Crimson clover will germinate and grow in the Kudzu duff, but the Kudzu must be removed in October to give it a chance to come through. Probably the best way to handle the volunteer crop of crimson or mangel-worm clover in the sericea field is to harrow the field lightly after the sericea has been combined for seed or has had its final hay crop of the year removed. The point is that the seed should contact the ground. (Continued tomorrow)

No Doubt Rhodemyre Ranks High as Center

Editor's Note: Here is the third of a series of Monday columns on unsung heroes of major Southern football games of the past weekend, as seen through the eyes of Constitution sports writers.

KENTUCKY-GEORGIA: Back in 1941, a husky youngster from Ashland, Ky., reported to Coach Ab Kirwan, of Kentucky, and announced he was a center.

Ab was glad to see him and promptly placed him among the fourth-stringers. Rhodemyre didn't like the atmosphere but the war stymied his rise for several years. During the conflict he taught people how to fly airplanes. Since then he's taught them how to play center.

He came back last season and Mr. Bear Bryant promptly placed him among the first eleven. All year long Bryant said Rhodemyre was the best center in the Southeastern Conference.

Today there is no doubt about it. This space usually is devoted to unsung heroes of Saturday's games, but because Kentucky played Georgia at night, Rhodemyre didn't get the praise coming to him. Hence this little bit for the paper.

On defense he was terrific. On offense, even better. If such a thing is possible. That's about as much as one can say about him.

He was an All-American center against Georgia. He's been an All-American center against a lot of folks. He'll continue to be. Jay Rhodemyre is a great ball player. It's a pleasure to watch him play and to pen a few lines about him.

—JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

TECH-VMI: One of the biggest heroes of the Tech-VMI game here Saturday sat on the sidelines. He was Arthur (Slick) Morton, Kaydet coach, who is in his first year at the Virginia Institution. Slick, who several years back was an outstanding halfback at Louisiana State and who later was assistant to Bernie Moore at that place, had himself a ball team geared to go and filled with the knowledge of what to do with a team which had them out-manned in every department.

Morton is now in his first year at VMI and is doing all right. His team already has completed a fairly successful season. His main desire was to bring the Kaydets to Atlanta undefeated and give them every psychological advantage to meet the Jackets in their best bid and tucker. He did just that, with his outfit downing Catawba and George Washington in their first two games of the season.

Slick had himself some ball players out on the field, too. One of the best was Capt. Malachi Mills, playing his fourth year with the Kaydets. Mills is a big 200-pound tackle. He was picked last year on the All-State team of Virginia and hails from New Orleans and is the only player in VMI history to captain two eleveners during his career. He was Captain of the All-Freshman Varsity in 1944.

In his line work Saturday Mills was cool and steady. The Jackets tried to knock him from their path but when he dug in his cleats they found they had to run the other way. And often Mills was in there downing Jacket runners for losses.

—GEORGE TISINGER.

VANDY-OLE MISS: It's happened in football before, and it'll happen again, but one of the best stories of how a substitute spelled the star and almost wrested victory from defeat was written Saturday in the Vanderbilt-Ole Miss game.

Will Glover, a sophomore with not too much confidence in himself, was rushed into the Ole Miss line-up when Charley Conerly was shaken up a bit after throwing a pass. And Glover almost won the game for the Rebels.

A rangy 180-pounder, Glover is the fastest back on the Ole Miss squad. It was he who sparked a running attack that netted the Rebs their touchdown in the third quarter, and it was he who almost got away a few minutes later for what would have been the winning score.

Scouts and coaches alike agreed it was this last play that decided the game. It was third down and about seven for the Rebs and the ball was near midfield. Glover cut off right tackle, veered towards the sideline and was almost in the clear when one of his own blockers got in the way and cut him down, two yards short of first down.

Ole Miss had to kick and never again could muster a scoring drive.

Glover, according to Backfield Coach Johnny Cain, came into his own Saturday.

"We've been kind of nursing him along, with the idea of him taking Conerly's place next year," Johnny, the old Alabama All-American, declared. "The main thing we have had to do with him is build his confidence up. I think he'll be a better player from here out as a result of his work Saturday."

Because his team lost, Glover didn't get the credit due him in newspaper accounts of the battle. But he was the "unsung hero" of the top game in the Southeastern Conference last week.

Light Tech Backs Are Doing Fine

By GEORGE TISINGER

A fellow once said that Georgia Tech's Engineers would be hard to score on, but he said the big question would be whether the light backs could do any scoring for themselves.

The fellow was right about the first part of his observation. The Engineers are downright rough on folks who want to cross their goal line. And to date in three games, against Tennessee, Tulane and VMI, nobody has crossed it.

As for the second part of the observation—that's pretty well solved, too. For in their three games the Jackets have totaled 67 points. And those light backs have mixed up running and passing plays to Coach Bobby Dodd's liking.

The quarterbacking, once looked upon with some doubt since Frank Broyles went away, also appears over the hump. The Jims, Southard and Still, ably backed by Joe E. Brown, have mixed their plays with wisdom and nobody is arguing about them.

In the Tennessee game the Jackets marched 190 yards along the ground and 155 in the air. In the Tulane contest it was 191 yards on the ground and 132 in the air. Now in their most recent victory in which they came on late to give a dead game VMI a comfortable trouncing at the Flats Saturday the Jackets hung up a record of 239 net yards gained rushing and 184 yards passing. This figures out at 468 yards gained in 66 tries against VMI, and isn't bad.

In these games the Techs have gained 630 yards on the ground and 471 via the air.

A promising note was heard again Saturday in the three freshmen backfield stars made their appearances. Red Patton, halfback, tried once and netted 16 yards. Bobby North tried once and he netted eight, while Bob McConner tried twice, once with a pass and once on the ground, and he got six and five, respectively.

North also kicked two out of three extra points after touchdowns to help the Jacket cause against the Keydets.

Of course the offensive ace was Fullback Frank Ziegler who had 27 tries on his record and to his credit he lost nothing, gaining a total of 132 yards, all along the highway.

No. 2 man in the ground gaining department was Halfback George Mathews who for long has been a sparkplug in the Tech backfield. His tries were 11, and he netted 64 yards, 36 passing and 28 on the ground. And it also was his good right arm that launched two touchdowns, both coming on that wide sweep and then the long heave while in mid-jump.

In fact, that pass play of Mathews' was just about all the fancy stuff displayed by Dodd as the boys fought it out with the Keydets in straight punch and go football. Scouts couldn't have learned too much about what to expect when Auburn and the rest of them came to town.

In looking back over the VMI-Tech game, one must never overlook the fine work done in the line by Capt. Bill Healey and Tackles Bob Davis and Ralph Slater. There were others, too, like Pope, McKinney, Hook and company. They were the reasons that when it was all over Dodd wouldn't single out anyone in particular for praise. He just said that his line played a real ball game and they really did.

Italian Netters Win

ROME, Oct. 12—(AP)—Italy defeated Sweden four matches to one in a three-day tennis tournament that ended Sunday.

It was the first league defeat of the season for the Packers.

Fullback Ted Fritsch booted a field goal from the 21-yard line to cap a 90-yard march after two minutes of the second quarter, but the lead was short-lived as the Cardinals bounced back.

Elmer Angsman, quite a back with Charley Trippi Sunday, scored the first Chicago marker with a two-yard plunge near the end of the second quarter to climax a 53-yard march.

The Cardinals, hot when they left the field at the half, started roaring again as the third period opened. Trippi, running hard, returned Indian Jack Jacobs' punt 22 yards to start a drive. Then, alternating with John (Red) Cochran in a vicious ground attack, Trippi and the Cardinals drove to the one and Cochran crashed over for the score. Harder kicked both extra points.

The Packers took the kickoff. Tony Canadeo returning 30 yards to his own 30. Walt Schlunkman sparked the ground attack and with Jacobs tossing 12 yards to Clyde Goodnight, the Packers marched to the seven. Canadeo, going wide around his own right end, scored and Fritsch kicked the point to make it 13-10. That ended the scoring—but not the ball game.

The Cardinals still were hammering as the fourth quarter opened, finally moving the Packer 21 yard as Trippi whipped a 45-yard pass to Mel Kutner. Frank Ivy tried a field goal from the 29 three plays later, but Ed Neal broke through to block the effort.

But the Chicagoans, definitely the team to beat with three

MONDAY MORNING QUARTERBACK SAYS:

Bear Bryant May Be 'Elevated' To Assistant Basketball Coach

By HARRY J. MEHRE

By the time you read this, dear football fans, Bear Bryant, the Kentucky headman, will be a Kentucky Colonel, Coach of the Week, and my imagination may be running away with me, but the Lexington underground had it Saturday night that Bear might be elevated to assistant basketball coach. Remember that last statement is unconfirmed. All this is for pulling the upset that upset all upsets—Kentucky 26, Georgia 0.

The only thing that bothers me about this impressive victory is that it is too impressive. Each week there has been an unheard of upset. Immediately the winning coach was made "Coach of the Week." One week later the miracle man stepped on the field and promptly had his ears knocked back and the press dubbed him "coach of the WEEK" so-and-so team.

The Georgia-Kentucky outcome is not so surprising when you analyze the situation. The game was played in the heart of the Blue Grass, where every home has a race track instead of a swimming pool. Georgia went to Lexington a top-heavy favorite to win by from two to four touchdowns.

Well, the race boss people knew that in racing the favorite is supposed to carry added weight to even things up. Kentucky just draped four touchdowns around Georgia's neck and that is too much for any team to carry.

Kentucky played a daring, reckless game and deserved to win. Georgia, of course, was not at the peak they attained against LSU. To Georgia's credit let it be said not one Kentuckian felt that victory was theirs until after the fourth touchdown in the third quarter.

At the half, with the score 20-0, Kentuckians were cheering, but not with a victorious note. They saved that until the game was over. Rhodemyre, fine Kentucky center, more than lived up to pregame clippings and appeared to be the hub around which this fine team is fashioned.

Red Sanders should be coach of something or other, because of his fine victory over undefeated Ole Miss. Vandy is the real surprise package of the Southeastern Conference. No team in the league has as imposing a record. Of course all the Commodores have to do next Saturday is take on Kentucky.

Red has been playing it smart, but, as the boys around the drugstore say, a bit old-fashioned and too close to the vest. No offense. Well you don't need too much scoring punch when you can hold three strong teams to three touchdowns. The idea is to win. Big scores don't help the team or coach. Red seems to have taken several pages from the book of his old coach, Dan McGugin, as he uses the kicking game to the fullest in keeping his team undefeated. The punt, when well covered by the kicking team, is as much an offensive play as any used today. Vandy gained more ground by the superb kicking of Clinard than with their offense.

Keep your eye on Ole Miss' Will Glover. This sub for Conerly almost pulled the game out of the fire.

Bear Wolf and his Gators have been beaten in every way possible, but Saturday they had a new experience. Carl Voyles, of Auburn, called on his crippled back, Travis Tidwell, to supply the touchdown toss that deprived Florida of well-earned victory.

Alabama and Tennessee took on "sleepers" in preparation for their clash in Birmingham. Neither team looked too impressive. Both will have to show vast improvement to rate the top ranking they had before the season. Some record for these rivals will be set by Saturday night. The loser will have lost three games before November. It has been many years since that has happened to either.

LSU was not impressive in making their comeback. Bernie Moore's Tigers had all they could handle in bouncing Texas A and M, 19-13. The Aggies are rated just fair. However, LSU has too many guns and too much ammunition to be held down long.

Bobby Dodd's Yellow Jackets ran into more trouble than was expected from a very well-organized and determined VMI outfit. The Cadets mixed about five different defensive setups that confused the Techs and threw their blocking assignments off.

Jim Still's passing and Frank Ziegler's plunging finally wore the Cadets down. Tech missed Dinky Bowen. With Bowen back and Ziegler improving Tech appears to have the best and most rugged backfield they have had in a long time. Other teams may have fancier backs, but in Still, George Mathews, Bowen and Ziegler, Dodd has a rugged, versatile, hard-running and determined quartet. Tech's kicking and handling of kicks Saturday was very ragged and I am sure will be the Number One coaching chore this week.

Buffalo Bills Defeat Colts

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 12—(AP)—The Buffalo Bills took a 20-15 All-America Conference win from the Baltimore Colts Sunday for their fifth victory in seven starts.

Schwenk, sold down the river by the Bills, led a spirited Colt squad that rolled to a 12-0 lead. He completed 15 of 24 passes. Aunie Lio kicked a 22-yard field goal to give the visitors a 3-0 advantage late in the first period. The Colts made it 5-0 when Mike Phillips tackled George Ratterman, attempting to pass from the end zone.

Frank Sinkwich's running and Schwenk's pass to Davis then moved the ball to the Bills' six. Schwenk, back to pass, cut through for a touchdown. Lio kicked the point.

straight league victories, still were determined. A poor punt by Jacobs' rolled dead on the 50. Angsman and Trippi continued to drive, and Paul Christman connected on one of his seven successful heaves of the afternoon. This time to Bill Dewell for 21 yards and a first down on the Packer 24. Three line plays failed to gain and Harder limped off the bench for a field goal try which was wide with two minutes to go. Webb.

BLAME ON MAME

Negro Nurse Brings Luck To Bryant

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 12—I guess you can place the blame on Mame, boys.

Mame is an old Negro mammy, the kind you read about and see in the movies. She came up here last year and looked after Bear Bryant's children during the football season, a period in which coaches spend a lot of time looking after kids but not their own.

Mame nursed Mrs. Bryant in Birmingham. She also nursed Bear's children and he has always considered her a very good omen. However, Mame wasn't around when he played Ole Miss and he lost.

She didn't think she was needed against Cincinnati and Xavier, but last Monday she showed up from Birmingham and said she was ready to help Kentucky whip Georgia.

As it turned out, the Wildcats hardly needed Mame's help. About all that can be said is Kentucky just whipped the dickens out of the Bulldogs.

It was just that bad. Georgia wasn't ready for the game, at least the kind of game Kentucky put up, and the 'Cats were in

Tough Tech Team Next For Auburn

By BERT PRATHER
Auburn's Tigers and Coach Voyles in particular couldn't enjoy the usual celebration following their last-quarter 20-14 triumph over Florida's hapless Gators Saturday at Montgomery, for thinking about the games to come.

Tidwell is Auburn's offense, and if the Tigers are to fare well in their remaining games against the SEC's first division, clubs it will be because Travis is able to give more of his time.

Restricting his chores to tossing the ball in previous starts, Tidwell surprised Florida Saturday by doing a bit of plunging. He drove through the line six yards for the initial score.

Of course, Tidwell has 10 other men in there with him and several of them are looking better with each game. Freddie Gafford, Billy Ball and Zac Jenkins, who had missed the first two games because of injuries, looked particularly good. In the line, Coach Voyles singled out Captain Harold Lannom, 190-pound tackle, for a bit of praise. He was a tower of strength and a constant thorn in the side of the Gators.

Coach Voyles said he hoped that his charges would be able to hold the score down against Bobby Dodd's Jackets Saturday. There seems little chance or hope that the Tigers could pull any kind of an upset here.

The young Auburn squad—there are six freshmen and the rest juniors and seniors—has only unbeaten and unscored-on Georgia Tech, Tulane, Vanderbilt, Mississippi State, Georgia and Clemson coming up.

Tech's powerhouse is the first objective, here at Grant Field Saturday afternoon. So, it is small wonder that the Auburn took but little time to enjoy their win over Coach Bear Wolf's Gators, who have not won a football game of any description since licking little Presbyterian back in 1945.

Saturday's game proved once again that Travelin' Travis Tidwell is as essential to the Plainsmen as sparkplugs to automobiles. Although playing on an ailing leg which has not sufficiently healed from a break suffered last Spring, Tidwell is still the mainspring of the Auburn attack.

In Saturday's encounter, Florida's youngsters had scored a touchdown and had the Voylesmen pretty much on the run when Tidwell came onto the scene in the second period to personally lead the Tigers to a quick, game-tying touchdown. He later tossed to Billy Ball for the winning marker in the final frame.

Florida's plight has everyone puzzled. The Gators have a young and speedy club, which most of the followers accompanying them to Montgomery secretly believed would defeat Auburn. The team hasn't been disgraced in any game it has played this year. Ole Miss, North Texas State and Auburn could not embarrass the Gators. In fact with a bit of luck all three losses could have been averted.

THE PREPARADE: CONSTITUTION PICKS SUPERLATIVES

Scogins, Redford, Slover Tops; Marietta Named Team of Week

By CHARLIE ROBERTS
Players from Decatur, Russell, Brown, Murphy, Roosevelt, North Fulton and Grady High made The Constitution's list of high school football superlatives for last week's games, and Jim Pressley's Marietta High is named "Team of the Week" for snapping Hapeville's.

Your favorite newspaper's Prep Honor Roll for the week, which included a startling number of upsets and complete reversals of form, follows:

PLAYER OF WEEK—Harold Scogins, of Russell. This 130-pounder scored twice, passed for another touchdown, gained 75 yards from scrimmage and hauled back every enemy punt and one kickoff for huge gains as he sparked the Wildcats to a 34-0 win over favored College Park.

COACH OF WEEK—R. L. Bowen, of Russell. For getting the "Cats, without a premeditated year, ready for their smashing victory over their neighborhood rivals. College Park has never won a game in the series.

TEAM OF THE WEEK—Marietta High. The underdog Blue Devils took charge from the outset, converted fullback, playing his first game as guard, rushed Pat Brogan, North Fulton passer, so hard he never had a chance to get off his aerials and otherwise played a savage, smashing game.

PUNTER OF WEEK—Marion Bond, of Murphy. His long, accurate boots put Brown in the hole repeatedly, and Joel Eaves' eleven would have lost by a much larger margin without his kicks, one of which went out of bounds on the Rebels' six-yard line.

DEFENSIVE BACK OF WEEK—Ray Dellinger, of Grady. On five or six occasions Bass runners got past every Grady defender except this hustling safety man. Score: Grady 14, Bass 0. Nuff said.

BEST PLAYER ON LOSING TEAM—David Vann, of North Fulton. The Bulldog sidekick tackled savagely all night and intercepted one of Redford's passes to race 72 yards for North Fulton's only touchdown.

BEST RUN OF WEEK—Ray Newsome, of Roosevelt. He grabbed an O'Keefe punt on the run and weaved his way 80 yards on a brilliant scoring jaunt which aided O. V. Bruner's club materially in rapping the Irish, 20-7. That's the crop, culled from scores of the finest individual performances of the season.

Prep Prattle
M. T. Daniel, former Atlanta, took over the head coaching job at Gordon Military College in Barnesville last week when W. B. Stone resigned. Daniel coached the Southwest DeKalb team here in 1943, was Dublin High mentor in 1944, and tutored Tifton, runner-up to Cairo for the 1946 SGFA title, the next two seasons. He began assisting Stone at the beginning of this year. Gordon has beaten West Georgia College, 26-0, and the Russell High Alumni, 7-6, but lost to Alabama State Teachers College, 13-0. Daniel's eleven will play host to Marion Institute of Alabama next Friday.

LaGrange Ace Leads Scorers

By JESSE BRADSHAW
Dick Hill, speed merchant back for Oliver Hunnicutt's unbeaten LaGrange eleven, took a strange hold on NGIC scoring honors over the weekend. Hill raced to four touchdowns against West Fulton to up his season point total to 61.

Lawrence Thompson, of Decatur, failed to score but remained in second place with 49 points and LaGrange's Herman Hill racked up one six-pointer to spur to 42 counters.

Jimmy Cooper, of Richmond Academy, with 48, and George Maloof, of Marietta, with 37, are one-two in the GIAA to date. Jack Slover and Lawton Grant, of Brown, pace the City League with 24 points each.

BROWN'S HOPE AGAINST JESUIT—Lawton Grant, tied at 24 points with Teammate Jack Slover for the City League scoring lead, will be the chief threat for Brown High against Jesuit, of New Orleans, defending Louisiana grid champions, Saturday night at Ponce de Leon Park. The triple-threat fullback, a second-stringer at Tech High last year, also has thrown a number of touchdown passes in keeping the Rebels unbeaten in five games. J. E. DeVaughn's eleven also is unscored-on.

Cooper Wins; Dahlbender 2d at Selma
SELMA, Ala., Oct. 12—(AP)—Pete Cooper, of Ponte Verde Beach, Fla., overcoming a six-stroke handicap, won the South-eastern PGA golf championships here Sunday with a 72-hole total of 273, three strokes better than second-place Gene Dahlbender, of Atlanta, who was leading the field at the end of Saturday's play.

Dahlbender, who shot a dazzling eight-under-par 63 in the second round to take a four-stroke lead, turned in an even-par 71 for the morning round, while the Florida professional shot a 68.

The Atlanta amateur was still leading Cooper by three strokes when the afternoon round began, but continued to lose ground and came in with a two-over-par 67. Cooper carded a four-under-par 67 to clinch both the Southeastern PGA crown and the Southeastern Open title.

COMPARED TO WAKEFIELD, OTHER VANDY STARS

Zach Clinard One of Greatest Kickers in Commodore History

By F. M. WILLIAMS
NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 12—In its time, under Dan McGugin and other great football coaches the South has produced, Vanderbilt has had some of the best kickers the game has ever seen.

So it was an old story here, one day after a 10-6 victory over Ole Miss, to hear grid fans talking about a new kicking hero. One Zach Clinard, who somehow or other "escaped" from Gadsden, Alabama, to pursue his education here, is the latest genius with his toe.

As a punter, they talk about Clinard in the same reverent tones as they do of Frank Gore and Tom Ryan, Scotty Neill and J. P. Moore, the latter whose great kicking was a top Vandy asset just one year ago.

And as a place kicker, there can be no greater compliment from a Vanderbilt man than a comparison with Hek Wakefield.

Yet, Wakefield never was a greater hero than brother Clinard, although Hek was a drop kicker and Zach prefers to have someone hold the ball for him.

It's no wonder they honor Clinard this year, for it was his field goal that beat Northwestern and started Vandy on its amazing three-game winning streak. It was his field goal and extra point that provided the winning margin against Ole Miss.

Clinard is a specialist in every respect. He not only kicks from placement, but he trots in there very time the Commodores have a coach, too.

Coach Red Sanders, whose job here this year is one of the better pieces of coaching in the nation, rates two fourth-quarter kicks by his sophomore star Saturday as the best he's ever seen.

"I tell you in all honesty," Sanders said Sunday, "he's never kicked in practice like he did on those two punts when the pressure was on. That made me feel awful y good. It's a little bit of comfort to know that when the going is tough, you have a buy like Clinard who'll respond with a performance like he gave Saturday."

Sanders didn't think his ball club was as sharp against Ole Miss as it was against Alabama the week before, but just the same he was happy to win.

"I think we beat a very good ball club and I'm glad it's over. You know, pass defense against that Charley Conerly is quite a problem. He gets the ball off fast and it travels fast. You just don't have much time to react when he hrows."

Sanders will take his end, John North, over Barney Poole, the two-time All-American with Army who is now playing his seventh year of college football, for Ole Miss.

"Poole came here as an All-American and he still is a great player, but if there was an All-American end on the field Saturday, it was North," Coach Sanders declared.

He was not speaking idly, for North was the outstanding player on the field. His defensive play was perfect, while Poole might just as well have been back in

Georgia Equipment Company Demonstrates Ferguson Equipment

Exhibit Draws 300 to Farm in DeKalb County

By PRESS HUDDLESTON
With an attendance of approximately 300 dealers and others interested in the "Jeep" tractor, and the Ferguson System of Implements as applied to it, the Georgia Equipment Company, a division of Jack Briscoe, Inc., entertained at a two-day meeting last week.

The occasion began on Monday at the City Auditorium with a beautiful luncheon and sales meeting, at which Jack Briscoe was the host, and with some 250 present.

On Tuesday, Oct. 7, the entire delegation, consisting of all "Jeep" Tractor dealers in Georgia and Alabama, individual Ferguson dealers, county agents and many others, totaling approximately 300, witnessed the mighty "Jeep" tractor operate 25 different farm implements.

Implements included in this demonstration were: 14-inch double bottom plows; pull-type bush and bog harrows; lift-type bush and bog harrows; tillers, cultivators, spring tooth harrows, tandem disc harrows, posthole diggers and many others.

In spite of the unfavorable weather on Tuesday, the entire crowd remained at the field on a nearby DeKalb County farm to witness the demonstration between showers, and much interest was shown. During the noon hour, delicious barbecue was served in the field, which was enjoyed by all in attendance.

Officials of Jack Briscoe, Inc., and Georgia Equipment Company, were highly pleased with the interest shown in this demonstration, as the recent connection with Harry Ferguson, Inc., gives for the first time, a standardized line of well-known equipment to operate with the new "Jeep" tractor.

After the meeting was over, dealers drove many "Jeeps" to their respective dealer points and placed orders for various Ferguson equipment in excess of $25,000. Since the entire dealer body has witnessed the splendid performance of the "Jeep" with the Ferguson

This piece of equipment is supplied by Harry Ferguson, Inc., of Detroit, and is most useful to the farmer in laying off corn rows or bedding for cotton. A fertilizer and planter attachment can be added to complete the job in one operation. It was a part of the demonstration conducted last week by the Georgia Equipment Company, a division of Jack Briscoe, Inc., at which approximately 300 dealers in Georgia and Alabama, individual Ferguson dealers and many others were present. Why should you use SOUTHPORT PAINT?

- Briefly: because Southport reduces your cost of painting.
- because Southport Paint covers more surface per gallon—therefore uses fewer gallons to paint your home.
 - because Southport paints are fortified against driving rains, blistering heat and freezing cold.
 - because Southport paints enhance the natural beauty of your home—protect it—and increase its value.
 - because painters who know say that two coats of Southport outlast three or four of ordinary paint. And that's real economy.

Atlanta Rug Cleaning and Dyeing Company Old Established Firm

Located at 1520 Spring St.,
Rhodes Center

By PRESS HUDDLESTON
Atlanta housewives and managers of hotels, clubs and other institutions are finding the work of the Atlanta Rug Cleaning & Dyeing Company more and more essential in the cleaning and dyeing of their rugs and carpets.

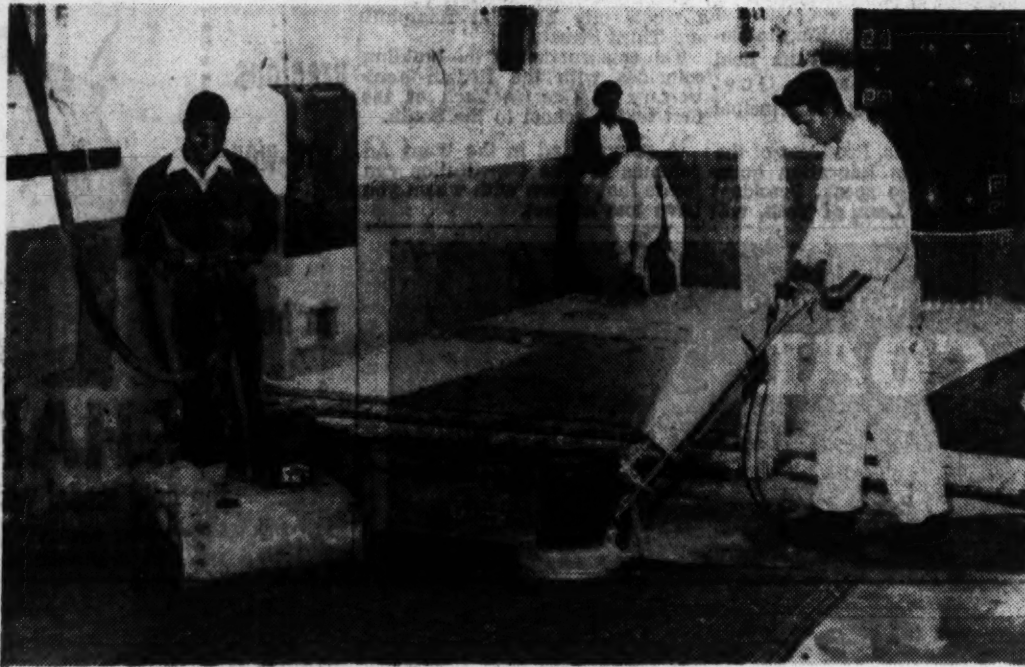

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Gano have no connection with any other firm or any business using similar names.

Established here nine years ago at 1520 Spring St., N. W., this firm provides a completely reliable service that embraces every detail. The work is guaranteed and all rugs are fully insured.

When rugs are received by the Atlanta Rug Cleaning & Dyeing Company they are carefully checked for needed repairs, including binding, retrimming, reupholstering or reweaving of moth holes or cigarette burns. Customers are notified in advance if any of this work is required.

This firm specializes in steam cleaning, which demolishes and sterilizes rugs, restoring their original resiliency and luster. Domestic rugs are resized to give them extra body.

When you have a rug cleaned,

CLEANING RUGS AND CARPETS—Showing trained experts at work in the new department at the Atlanta Rug Cleaning & Dyeing Company, 1520 Spring St., N. W., Atlanta. The phone number is AT. 5962.

died or repaired by the Atlanta Rug Cleaning & Dyeing Company you have the satisfaction of knowing that the job will be done by experts who have made this their life's work. Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Gano, owners of the firm, have had approximately 17 years' experience and are regarded as specialists in the field.

If your rug or carpet is faded or dogspotted, or if you wish to change its color for matching purposes the firm will safely vat-dye your rug.

The dyeing department is well equipped for its work. Your rug can be vat-dyed into new colors; thus restoring them for further use. This firm has successfully dyed thousands of rugs and carpets for thousands of patrons in the several years it has been established here.

Upholstered furniture cleaning is also a specialty of the firm. The concern also has portable equipment for cleaning tackdown or wall-to-wall carpet in your home or establishment.

In addition to the splendid service offered to Atlanta customers, out-of-town customers may also contact their agents in various cities throughout Georgia. If there is not an agent in your city you can send the rugs direct to the Atlanta Rug Cleaning & Dyeing Company at 1520 Spring St., N. W., Atlanta, Ga., and you may be assured of every co-operation.

They are now offering Protection, an amazing new chemical for flameproofing textile materials in homes, offices, schools, hotels, apartments, theaters—any place where fabrics are used.

This concern can also moth-proof your rugs and carpets with the famous Berol method, giving you a 10-year guarantee against any moth damage. The work can be done at their plant, or if you wish they will come to the house and moth-proof your rugs or furniture.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Gano have visited rug cleaning plants from coast to coast and observed the various methods used and noted that it is impossible for an experienced, established concern to give two and three-day service, as it requires time and skill for quality work. It requires approximately one week for a good cleaning job.

Let the Atlanta Rug Cleaning & Dyeing Company help you take care of your rugs and carpets. Call VERNON 4019 or ATwood 5962 for estimates.

Wheel Alignment And Good Brakes For Safe Driving

All motorists and operators of fleets of trucks realize that proper wheel alignment is one of the absolute requisites for safety in driving their vehicles.

It is for this reason that Harvey and Bill Robinson, two brothers, who own and operate the Auto Alignment Company, 382 Whitehall St., are kept unusually busy these days.

Autoists not only realize the necessity of correct wheel alignment, but they have grown to realize that the Robinson Brothers knew just how to properly correct and repair this kind of trouble in their automobile or truck.

For 15 years Harvey and Bill Robinson have been engaged in the work of repairing, alignment and frame straightening work, and no concern in Atlanta is better qualified with both experience and equipment to give the finest and most satisfactory service on this type of work, than this concern.

Not only the brothers, but they have surrounded themselves with the most expert mechanics available and with every modern method and equipment for doing the service they are rendering.

In addition to alignment work the company is paying special attention to brake service. This is a service that all drivers should appreciate, for nothing is more important than correctly adjusted brakes. This concern is adept on brake work just as they are on alignment work. Have them look over your brakes—have them put in safe condition before you drive.

The Auto Alignment Company has been located at 382 Whitehall Street for a good, long time. It is still there, in a large, roomy location, with every convenience for quick service, and is the only place of its kind in which the Robinson brothers are interested.

In their wheel alignment work the Robinsons can say with pride that they handle this work for practically every ambulance concern in the city, and keep many of the buses operating in and out of Atlanta in fine rolling condition for their operators.

One of the successes of the Robinson brothers is the fact that in this wheel alignment work they use the universally known Best system—a guarantee that the best of workmanship is thus assured.

In order to speed up its work,

actual work done, and make no charge for the pickup and delivery service.

the firm has separate departments and entrances for passenger cars and trucks and buses, also a special entrance for large vans in the rear of the company's own new two-story building.

To further increase the concern's capacity, the Auto Alignment Company has now in use a special 50-foot long equipment for straightening truck or bus frames.

Auto and truck owners are assured of little or no delay in getting their requirements taken care of.

If you think that work of the kind they do is needed, call them, L.A. 6646. They will send out and get your truck or car, take it in, check it, and if they find it needs no alignment or other work such as they do, they very candidly inform you, send your car back to your home or place of business and there is no charge for the service. Even when the work is needed, they charge only for the

NEWS ABOUT GEORGIA

Compiled From State News Service Reports
By SAM CLARKE

Commissioner G. C. Crawford, of Elbert County, said an election will be held in Elberton Nov. 12 on a $300,000 bond issue for a county hospital. Mrs. W. O. Jones has presented the Hospital Authority with a lot, the Commissioner said.

A fifth "big gun" scheduled for the Industrial Editors' Institute at the University of Georgia Nov. 6-8 in Athens is Stanley A. Kniseley, executive vice president of Associated Business Papers, who will address the convocation as guest of the W. R. C. Smith Publishing Company of Atlanta. His name goes on the roster along with such notables as Ashley Hall, Jr., of the Saturday Evening Post; Kenneth C. Pratt, a New York public relations consultant; Walter Trimby, executive of Graflex, Inc.; and Lewis F. Gordon, vice president of the Citizens and Southern National Bank.

Houston County voters will decide Tuesday on a $235,000 school building program. Biggest portion of the money would be spent on a new grammar school at Perry where the enrollment has reached an all-time high.

An attractive Chinese girl, Georgiana Hsueh, of Shanghai, has been chosen vice president of the Wesleyan College Athletic Association in a special election held on the Macon college campus. Marie Wilson, of Griffin, president of the organization, reported.

Dublin's Dilemma

A traffic problem of Dublin was brought literally to the front door of Mayor C. Flannery Pope when a horse, dragging a broken wagon, dashed to the entrance of the city executive's new home and died there.

A Negro was driving the vehicle leisurely on Dexter Road when he was rammed from the rear by an auto. The startled steed took flight, ending at the Mayor's home. The surprised Mayor found at his doorstep a horse with a broken neck.

The Negro, the Mayor, and his home were reported unharmed.

Names Make News

Jean Minter, of Elberton, has been selected for membership in Phi Sigma, honor scholastic group of sophomores at GSCW in Milledgeville.

Thomas E. Reed, Waycross, Atlantic Coast Line Railroad conductor, has been awarded an emblem for 25 years of continuous service.

Thomas Pease, of Tampa, Fla., is the new Editor of the Savannah Bulldog, student publication of the University of Georgia's Savannah Division, succeeding Jimmy Flowers, of Camilla.

The new director of the Vesper Choir of Georgia Southwestern College at Americus is James A. Wash, Jr., of Fort Gaines.

Facts About Farming

Hancock County Agent Wilton W. Stewart urged all dairymen to put in more pastures this fall and make plans now for raising their feed next year. Roy Bowden, floriculturist in the University of Georgia Department of Horticulture at Athens, will represent the University at the regional meeting of the Southeastern Florists' Association to be held in Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 19-21. Pecan growers of Toombs County have started gathering the 1947 crop and farmers report that indications point to a slightly larger crop this year. J. B. Brewton, manager of the Georgia Pecan Auctions at Vidalia, revealed.

Turtle Trouble

Peggy Coleman, of the Tifton Gazette, said the paper's oddity department has received many unusual "critters," but when Shirley Gladney, of Tifton, brought in Siamese twin turtles, that was the last straw.

She said two turtle eggs were found in the yard of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gladney. One egg hatched a normal turtle, while the other produced the sideshow variety.

The little twins are alive, she said, and apparently none the worse despite being joined together.

Here and There

The Appling County Fair will be held this year at Baxley Oct. 20-23 for the first time since 1941.

The Hancock Creamery at Sparta has shut down the milk condensing plant until next Spring after having a very busy Summer. Marvin Pounds, of Sparta, President of the Central Georgia

5,000 Families Compete in Farm Contest

Five thousand Georgia farm families are competing in the first North Georgia Community Improvement Contest, which ends Oct. 31, the sponsoring Farmers Club of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce said Saturday.

The contest, which has as its ultimate goal the permanent improvement of rural Georgia through community efforts, offers 69 competing communities cash prizes totaling $4,000.

Judges, who will select leading communities in 16 counties, will present a $1,000 top prize to the one showing greatest development of social, economic and religious activities through co-operation of all citizens. Major objectives of the contest also include developing and improving sound systems of farming and general community beautification.

A Hughes Spalding, President of the Farmers Club, said counties entered in the contest are: Carroll, Douglas, Coweta, Paulding, Bartow, Cobb, Fulton, Fayette, Spalding, Clayton, DeKalb, Walton, Gwinnett, Hall, Cherokee and Rockdale.

Tennessee Author To Visit Here

Stanley F. Horn, Nashville, Tenn., author whose book, "Gallant Rebel," hits the presses Tuesday, will arrive in Atlanta today. "Gallant Rebel" is the story of the Confederate cruiser Shenandoah.

Horn, the editor of Southern Lumberman, a national trade journal, is one of the South's most eminent historians, having scored with an earlier work entitled "Army of Tennessee."

Horn is coming here with Earl Schenck Mies, Director of Rutgers University Press, and Alan E. James, the firm's sales manager.

Thompson Speaks Saturday at Tech Ground Breaking

Ceremonies commemorating the breaking of ground for Georgia Tech's new $1,000,000 Textile Engineering Building will be held Saturday, with Acting Gov. Thompson delivering the principal address.

Frank Williams, President of the Georgia Textile Education Foundation, will also speak. President Blake R. Van Leer, of Tech, will introduce Acting Gov. Thompson.

The new building, which is made possible through a grant of $850,000 from State funds by Thompson and an appropriation of $175,000 by the Board of Regents, will be the "most modern instructional and laboratory building in the world when completed," Tech officials say.

The building will occupy almost a whole city block at Hemphill and Third Streets.

The construction of the building coincides with the fiftieth anniversary of Georgia Tech of the first textile school in the South.

British Composer Williams Observes 75th Birthday
LONDON, Oct. 12—(P)—Ralph Vaughan Williams, considered by many to be Britain's greatest living composer, was 75 years old Sunday.

He observed the occasion quietly at his home in Dorking, Surrey.

The nation is devoting a full week to the celebration, with the best of his works being featured on British Broadcasting Corporation programs and in concert halls.

Vaughan Williams has written symphonic works and compositions on religious subjects.

Like an army with banners, a uniformed host moves through Georgia . . . not with the blare of trumpets and the heralded by a brisk footstep and a crisp, starched rustle.

This host—armed with modern science and a dedicated spirit—moves in doctors' offices in crowded cities—in modern, sparkling hygienic clinics—in hospital corridors throughout the state—in rural health centers—and along winding, country roads—leaving in its wake relief and healing, confidence and hope.

Miss Thomas, Mr. Newton Announce Wedding Plans

Nuptial plans have been completed by Miss Sylvia Elizabeth Thomas and her fiancé, James Newton, whose marriage will be brilliantly solemnized on Nov. 1 at 8:30 p. m. at the Second-Ponce de Leon Baptist Church, officiating. Music will be presented by Henry Ragland, soloist; Mrs. Walker Bankston, violinist; and Mrs. Charles Chalmers, organist.

The bride-elect will be given in marriage by her father, Walter Roy Thomas, and William H. Newton, II, will serve as his brother's best man.

Miss Shirley Smith, of Forest City, N. C., will be maid of honor, and Mrs. William C. Moore, of North Carolina, has been chosen to be matron of honor. Bridesmaids will include Miss Helen Newton, of Rome, cousin of the bridegroom-elect; Miss Elizabeth New, of Thomaston; Miss Henrietta Gunter, of Commerce; Miss Ellen Hartel, of New York City; Miss Alice Ann Davis, of Gainesville; Miss Evelyn Blackwell, of Augusta; Mrs. Dan Jenkins, of Macon; Miss Sara Jo Barnett and Mrs. Jack Hosford. Little Renee Morris and Ann Lee will be the flower girls.

Serving as ushers will be William H. Newton, Dr. Paul Cousins and Dr. Everett Porter, all of Rome; Dr. Edwin S. Preston, of Lebanon, Tenn.; Henry H. Hartel, of New York City; Carlton W. Binns, Grady A. Lee and Judge Frank A. Hooper, all of Atlanta.

Groomsmen will include John R. Newton, II, brother of the bridegroom-elect; Paul W. Greeley, Jr., of Kirtland, N. C.; Frank Harris, William Huffman and Frank Muschamp, of Rome; Thomas Barnes and Edward Miller, of Philadelphia, Pa.; Jim Klat, of Statesville, N. C.; and Walter R. Thomas, Jr., brother of the bride-elect.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas will honor the couple at a reception at their home on Tuxedo Road. Keeping the bride's book will be Mrs. Paul Greeley, Jr., of Rome, and Mrs. William McNeal.

A series of prenuptial affairs is being planned in honor of Miss Thomas and Mr. Newton. Mrs. T. D. Body entertained the couple at a dinner party over the weekend. Mrs. Charles Shaw will be hostess.

MRS. M. D. ROSSER

Miss Green's Marriage Told

The marriage of Miss Melba Green, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Green, of Doerun, and Milton Dillard Rosser, son of Mrs. Ada Rosser, of Hapeville, and J. G. Rosser, Sr., of Atlanta, was solemnized Saturday afternoon at the Hapeville Methodist Church. Rev. Warren Candler Budd officiated.

Music was rendered by Mrs. Denny C. Starnes, organist, and Willard Cash, soloist. Gettys Rosser, Jr., was best man, and the ushers were James Kincaid, John Harrelson and James McLaughlin.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Miss Edith Moore was maid of honor, Miss Lynn Rosser, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Billie Parker were bridesmaids, and their gowns were fashioned alike of tulle. Miss Moore wore old rose, and the bridesmaids wore blue. They carried bouquets of mixed fall flowers.

The bride chose a gown of white satin featuring a lace yoke, and a full skirt that terminated in a train. Her veil of illusion was held by a pearl tiara. Her flowers were white roses and orchids.

Mrs. Green, mother of the bride, wore a model of black satin, matching accessories and white carnations. The bridegroom's mother was gowned in black crepe, black accessories, and a shoulder spray of white carnations.

The couple left for a trip to the mountains. The bride traveled in a green wool suit, brown accessories, and a purple-throated orchid. Upon their return they reside at 3382 Colville Ave., Hapeville.

Hotel Greeters Will Entertain Visiting Officers

Hotel Greeters of America, Charter No. 49, will entertain visiting international officers at a banquet Oct. 21 at 7:30 p. m. D. O. Beusse and W. H. Chaplin, of the Atlanta Biltmore Hotel, will be hosts.

The international officers to be honored will be Tom Kelly, President; Greeters; Mrs. Almira Lake, President; Mrs. Bernice Bennett, Secretary-Treasurer; and Miss Betty Cole, Board of Governors, Women's Division. They will arrive here from Charleston, S. C., after attending the Southeastern Regional Convention.

Roscoe Hendricks, President of Georgia Greeters, and Mrs. Lon E. Davis, President of Georgia Women's Division, will attend the convention and return with the guests. Other out-of-town guests will arrive from Macon, Augusta and St. Simon Island.

Former Gov. Ellis Arnall will be the principal speaker, and will be presented by Carl Daniels, hotel executive of Greenwood, S. C., who will be toastmaster.

Preceding the banquet there will be a reception at 7 p. m. Reservations should be made by Oct. 15 by calling Miss Mildred Collier, Robert Fulton Hotel, or Jack Wadleton, Piedmont Hotel.

Chatterbox Club Is Organized

The Chatterbox Club, sponsored jointly by the YWCA and YMCA, has recently been organized to provide recreational and educational opportunities for employed boys and girls under 25.

Young people of this age are invited to attend the club's semi-monthly meetings on Wednesday at 7:30 at either the YW or YM. The next meeting of the group will be a game party Oct. 15 at the YWCA.

Further information may be obtained from Miss Elizabeth Bowles, director of the Industrial Department at the YMCA.

Miss Alene Skelton is President of the Chatterbox Club and Mr. and Mrs. Dan Rencher are advisers.

MRS. DOUGLAS BREWER

Mrs. Brewer was before her recent marriage Miss Edna Womack, daughter of Mrs. Jessie C. Womack, of Atlanta, and Ivey Womack, of Marietta. The groom is the son of Mrs. A. S. Brewer and the late Mr. Brewer, of Marietta.

Miss Ross Is Bride Of Alton C. Craft

Miss Dorothy Lucile Ross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Vinson Ross, recently became the bride of Alton Clarence Craft at a quiet wedding taking place at the home of the bride's parents in Decatur. The ceremony was performed by Rev. William L. Ross, uncle of the bride, and Dr. Roy Craft, uncle of the groom.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and Charles Edward Craft served as best man. Mrs. Grady V. Ross was matron of honor.

Mrs. Craft graduated from Decatur Girls High School, and also from Crawford W. Long School of Nursing.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Allie C. Craft, of Atlanta, formerly of Toccoa. He graduated from Toccoa High School, and during the war served as pharmacist's mate with the U. S. Navy, in both the Pacific and European Theaters.

Mr. Craft is now studying medicine, and will enter the Emory University School of Medicine.

Following the ceremony the couple were entertained at a reception, after which they left for a wedding trip to the mountains of North Carolina and Tennessee. Upon returning they will reside in Atlanta.

MRS. FREDERICK SCHEER

Miss Kessler Weds Mr. Scheer

Miss Gerry Kessler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Kessler, became the bride of Frederick Scheer, of Eatonton, at a ceremony which took place Sunday at the Mayfair Club, with Rabbi David Marx officiating. A motif of white gladioli and ferns featured the club decorations. The music was presented by Mrs. Herbert Karp, soloist, and Harry Robbins, violinist.

The groomsmen were Dr. Richard Steinbach and Lee Almey, of Eatonton, Ga. Best man was Morris Leder, of Eatonton.

Mrs. R. E. Taylor, of Miami, as her sister's maid of honor, wore a gown of aqua faille tulle. Her flowers were bronze chrysanthemums. The bridesmaids, Miss Gertrude Matell and Miss Isabel Schooler, of Chicago, wore aqua gowns and carried chrysanthemums.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an ivory duchess satin gown featuring a round yoke and a peplum trimmed in seed pearls. Her illusion veil was of Brussels lace and lilies of the valley. The bride carried white orchids with stephanotis and lilies of

A Necklace
For the Lady Neit

Mrs. McKinley is serving as guest columnist while Doris Lockerman, Woman's News Editor, completes a special assignment.

By LENA MCKINLEY

Three thousand, three hundred and thirty-five years ago, cherished women wore precious jewels to prove it, just as the lucky ones do today.

A necklace made during the reign of Akhnaton (1385-1350 B. C.) for the Lady Neit is in Atlanta in possession of Dr. T. K. Peters, Egyptologist, and now Public Relations Director of Boys' Estate. It is part of a valuable collection of Egyptology which the scholarly authority keeps locked securely in a safety deposit vault.

The inscription on the necklace indicated it was a gift to Neit from her father. The gold beads of the upper row are ingeniously made in long and short beads to allow the whole circle to lay flat upon the chest. The pendant beads are lotus buds and the shields are of carnelian and lapis lazuli.

A large central pendant is divided into 12 hours or sections of the night for the goddess Neit after whom the owner of the necklace apparently was named. The goddess Neit was the goddess of night, and for this reason the back portion of the jewel is of silver, the moon metal.

Dr. Peters, who is a storehouse of romantic historic lore, says the period of the necklace was one of the most fruitful in the entire history of ancient Egypt. Akhnaton was the first person in history to proclaim his belief in one God, long before the time of such a belief by the Hebrews, as far as can be determined.

"He was an iconoclast in every way," Dr. Peters says. "He caused the ancient gods of Egypt to be destroyed, and changed all the order of life into a pattern more joyous and free than it had ever been. The old traditional art of Egypt was swept away and a newer and more natural art was substituted."

"During his reign, such beautiful works as the bust of Queen of Nefertiti and the bust of his daughter, the Lady Senerfru, were made, which for sheer beauty and sweetness of expression have never been surpassed."

"Tut-Ankh-Amon was his son-in-law, and all of the beautiful objects found in his tomb show the influence of Akhnaton. Akhnaton's Hymn to the One God is one of the earliest and most inspiring pieces of religious writing we have."

And Speaking of Gems—

E. Cleve Kingsbery is a businessman who beachcombs as a hobby. But he doesn't go to the seashore, he goes to the desert instead.

And, of all things, he collects pebbles. Kingsbery, you see, is a "rockhound."

A rockhound, let it be explained, is a person who scouts around from one rock bed to another in search of pebbles, or rocks, which have gem stone possibilities. Lapidary is the technical name for rockhound. But Kingsbery says he doesn't qualify technically, since a lapidary cuts, polishes and sets his own stones, while he (Kingsbery) only gathers the stones and then has a jeweler cut, polish and mount them.

Even at that, Kingsbery has the last word. He decides on the patterns of his stones and how they are to be mounted. A decided Western style is evident in his collection of keychain tabs, pendants, brooches, rings and bracelets, which are mounted in heavy silver, and some with Indian symbols.

Only three groups of stones are harder than these semi-precious finds of his, which are a mixture of agate, chalcedony, jasper, jasper-agate, petrified wood, sardonyx and plume jasper. They are so hard they have to be cut with a steel-blade circular saw with small diamonds set in the rim.

When the stones are halved, they present a general mixture of color without pattern, it was explained. But the polished stone takes on depth and brilliance. Some are a pearly mixture of colors—deep reds, browns, yellows—blended together as through an azure mist. Others present floating cloud pictures, dark and stormy or bright and sunny.

Some have three-dimensional proportions which suggest waterfalls, landscapes, figures of people and animals. Mr. Kingsbery's favorite stone is brecciated jasper, unmounted, which looks like a mosaic of fragments of multi-colored jasper which have been cemented by nature.

Happy hunting ground for this rockhound is an area of several acres located near the Colorado River, north of the Gulf of Mexico, in the California Desert.

He became interested in his hobby 10 years ago after reading an article in Desert Magazine entitled "Beachcombing on the Desert." He now makes a trek to the California Desert four times a year. And he always comes back with interesting loot.

Mrs. Stribling

To Fete Mrs. Young

An informal party of the week will be the morning coffee at which Mrs. J. W. Stribling will entertain tomorrow.

The affair will honor Mrs. John Young, the former Miss Mary Ann Robinson, whose marriage was a recent social event. Mrs. Stribling will entertain at 11:30 a. m. at her home on West Andrews Drive.

BEAUTY THEN AND NOW—Miss Meriwether Lewis holds a bust of the Lady Senerfru, a patient, sweet-faced princess who was the daughter of Akhnaton, ruler of Egypt in the late 1300s B. C. Miss Lewis wears a carnelian and lapis lazuli necklace made for the Lady Neit, during the same reign.

Miss Isaacson
Weds M. Bernard

Miss Louise Isaacson became the bride of Maurice Bernard recently at The Temple. Dr. David Marx officiated.

The bride wore a gold suit trimmed with mink, a matching hat, and accessories of brown suede. She carried a family prayer book adorned with white orchids and showered with white roses.

Mrs. Ely Freedman, sister of the bride, was her matron of honor. She was attired in a brown suit and a brown velvet hat. She wore purple orchids. Best man was Myer Sigal.

Mrs. Louis Isaacson, the bride's mother, wore a brown beaded dress with bronze orchids. The groom's mother, Mrs. Margaret K. Bernard, wore a black jet-trimmed dress, and her flowers were bronze orchids.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents gave a breakfast at the Mayfair Club for the immediate family.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard have left on a month's honeymoon to New Orleans and Guatemala.

BRIDGE

Q. 1—As South you hold:

10 ♠ Q 10 2 ♦ K Q 4 ♣ J 10 6 5 2
Partner has opened with two no trump.

What is your response?
A—By simple arithmetic one can be determined that you have a slam. Your hand contains a point count of 11 and partner's minimum would be 23. A total of 35 with a slam would mean you have a grand slam.

Q. 2—As South you hold:

5 4 3 2 ♠ A 10 6 5 2 ♣ A Q J
The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West
1 club Pass 2 clubs Pass
3 clubs Pass 4 clubs Pass

What do you bid now?
A—It is reasonable to assume that partner has six clubs, since in his desire to move forward he was unable to show any other suit. You ought to be able to pick up two more tricks in the other suits so we suggest a bid of three no trump. You should be willing to have the slight risk that some one will have a five card suit to bid three hearts over partner's three club bid. This should not be interpreted as a heart suit. If you really had a heart suit you would have preferred to make a one over one response, rather than a raise to two clubs.

Q. 3—As South you hold:

♠ A 7 4 ♣ Q 8 7 ♠ K 8 3 ♣ Q 10 6 5 2
The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West
1 spade Pass 2 spades Pass
3 hearts Pass 4 spades Pass
4 no trump Pass 5 no trump Pass

What do you bid now?
A—Partner has indicated you to have a hand of limited strength. He could hardly expect any more of a player who was willing to give only a single raise to the opening bid. The hand, therefore, except the invitation by bidding six no trump. The fee no trump bid must be construed as a raise of the no trump and not a Blackwood raise. If it were intended as Blackwood partner would have jumped to four no trump right over the five spade bid.

Q. 4—As South you hold:

♠ K 10 6 2 ♣ J 9 8 ♠ J 10 4 ♣ J 8 5
The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South
5 diamonds Double Pass 7
What do you bid?

A—While the double of a preemptive bid is intended primarily for a take-out, nevertheless, this very balanced hand, if started with a double strategy to play for penalties, would be a very good opening bid.

While it is true that by failing to show your best suit you may forfeit a spade game, you are in very doubtful that you will reach that game since partner may not be in a position to raise your forced response. The a take-out in three spades would be regarded as correct over one no trump.

Q. 5—You are not vulnerable, opponents are, your right hand adversary opens with one diamond, and you hold:

♠ A Q 2 ♣ K Q ♠ A Q 10 8 ♣ A 9 4
What do you bid?
A—Pass. This does not indicate timidity, but rather bloodlessness. A pass guarantees you a mere profit, whereas in order for your partner to raise your partner will need a card or two, which he probably doesn't have. Even one diamond may be defended for as much as the value of any game you might have.

Q. 6—As South you hold:

♠ 4 3 2 ♣ A J 7 4 ♠ K 10 8 ♣ K 8 5
The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West
1 heart Pass 2 clubs Pass
2 hearts Pass 3 spades Pass

What do you bid now?
A—Four clubs. It would be improper to bid merely three no trump, which in this case would be a constructive bid. Actually you have distinctly more than a minimum, which you have for advertised, and partner has made a vigorous slam try. He must be interested in the king of clubs.

Q. 7—As South you hold:

♠ K 10 7 5 3 ♠ J 4 ♠ 4 ♣ A J 9 8 5
The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West
1 diamond Pass 2 spades Pass
2 no trump Pass 3 no trump Pass

What do you bid now?
A—Three clubs. You are, of course, going to game, but with your substantial distribution you would prefer to play in a suit if partner agrees. If partner returns to spades you will bid game in that suit. If he persists with no trump, you may relax in the comfort of having fully described your hand.

Q. 8—You are vulnerable, opponents are not, and as South you hold:

♠ Q 8 2 ♣ A 9 4 ♠ Q 5 ♣ A Q 8 3
The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West
1 spade Double Double 3 clubs
4 spades Pass 7
What do you bid now?

A—Five clubs. Or if you choose you may have right into six spades. Partner without waiting for developments has chosen to show you that he has a very powerful spade suit and an enhanced hand. His bid should not be interpreted as a preemptive bid, but rather as a bid to play for a big score.

Jewish Women
To Hear Mr. Duke

The Atlanta Section, National Council of Jewish Women, will meet on Wednesday, beginning with a luncheon at 12:30 p. m., at the Standard Club.

Daniel Duke, Atlanta attorney, will speak on "Minority Oppression—a Symptom of Social and Moral Decadence." Mr. Duke was Assistant Solicitor General of Fulton Superior Court from 1938 to 1942, and in 1940-41 he investigated the Ku Klux Klan floggings which centered around East Point. He was made Assistant Attorney General of Georgia in 1945, and served in this capacity until Jan. 15, 1947. At that time he prosecuted the Columbians. In January, he was named by the U. S. Junior Chamber of Commerce as one of the 10 outstanding young men of America and received a reward in Chicago.

VENETIAN SOCIETY
To Be Entertained
Mrs. Lil Nelson and Miss Kitty Cofer, 1947 sponsors for the Venetian Society, will entertain the Venetians and their dates at a party Tuesday evening in honor of the new sponsors, Misses Lorraine Hopkins and Barbara Darby. The event will be in the form of an inflation party and will be held at English Park.

The club house will be decorated with gas-filled balloons at the top of the ceiling to represent the high ceiling and high cost of living. Each person will be given paper money and the purpose will be to see how much each couple can increase their income by entering in the various games and contests. At the close of the evening the couple that has accumulated the most money will be awarded a prize.

Gov. Thurmond,
Miss Crouch
To Wed Nov. 7

ELKO, S. C., Oct. 12—(UP)—Mr. and Mrs. Horace J. Crouch Sunday announced the engagement of their daughter, Jean, to South Carolina's bachelor Governor, J. Strom Thurmond.

The wedding, in the Executive Mansion in Columbia on Nov. 7, will be attended only by the immediate families of the bride and bridegroom.

The couple plan a reception Nov. 30 at the Mansion after their return from a honeymoon.

Miss Crouch was graduated from Williston-Elko High School in 1943 and from Winthrop College at Rock Hill last June.

Gov. Thurmond selected Miss Crouch as "Miss South Carolina" to represent the State at the Azalea Festival last April. From July 1 until Oct. 1 she was on the secretarial staff of Thurmond's Executive Department.

CIO Asks Labor, Management To Team for More Production

BOSTON, Oct. 12.—(P)—The CIO said Sunday America and the world need "production, more production" and proposed a new system of labor-management teamwork to bring it about.

President Philip Murray made the proposal in his annual report as the CIO prepared to open its ninth convention here Monday.

Murray said a joint effort for teamwork "can greatly strengthen the forces of democracy throughout the world."

He invited industry to join in creating "National Industrial Councils" in various industries to achieve "production teamwork."

Murray said "American labor will not shirk its duty" to get greater production. He asked industry and the "business-dominated congress" to do their part and "we will see a production outflow which will exceed even that of the record war years."

Industry's part, he said, would be to reduce prices and expand the productive capacity of vital industries.

Murray said further that if business will have faith in the future and if the Government will "take its full employment guarantee seriously, there need never be a serious recession, or depression again in our country."

Murray made much of high prices and profits. He said although the economy has shown "many encouraging signs," the steady rise of prices and profits, plus other factors, "will eventually produce a major depression," unless halted.

He outlined a 17-point economic program, the first point being an "all-out attack" on the present price level. He said re-establishment of price ceilings "should be squarely faced."

Since the report was printed, the CIO position on this has become even stronger. Murray in recent statements and speeches has been strenuously demanding a special session of Congress to restore price control and rationing. The convention is set to echo his demand.

Murray didn't go into detail on how the proposed "national industrial councils" would operate.

He has made similar proposals in other years. But the suggestion took on new interest because of present economic conditions, and especially because of his emphasis on strengthening democracy throughout the world.

Word was received in Atlanta Sunday of the death of Cpl. Wier L. Boyd, Jr., formerly of Atlanta, now with the U. S. Marines at Camp Lejeune, N. C.

Relatives stated that Cpl. Boyd was en route to his home in Hyattsville, Md., Friday, when the car in which he was riding with four other boys struck the central paving on U. S. Highway 1, near Frederickburg, Md., skidded and careened into the path of an oncoming moving van, in the opposite lane.

Four of the boys were killed, including Cpl. Boyd. The fifth boy died later in a hospital.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wier L. Boyd, of Hyattsville, formerly of Atlanta; three sisters, Mrs. Foster and Mrs. Forrest Shell, both of Atlanta; and Mrs. DeWitt Bunn, en route to Tokyo, Japan, and his grandmother, Mrs. Emma L. Boyd, of Atlanta, formerly of Dahlgren.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

LOST TRIBE?

Newly-Found Cave Reveals 30 Skeletons

TAZEWELL, Va., Oct. 12.—(P)—A buried cave, discovered accidentally by a farm hand, Sunday gave up its century-old secret—30 skeletons.

Unearthed on a farm some three miles from here, the cave was explored by two farmers who reported they found an "enormous" subterranean cavern filled with stalagmite formations. Lying on the floor, they said, were the skeletons. Near the bodies were a number of beads.

Jeff Higginbottom, on whose farm the cave was found, said he had asked an archeologist from Virginia Tech to explore the cave and examine the skeletons.

The entrance to the cave is a hole large enough to admit only one man. Thirty feet down, however, the aperture widens into a series of elaborate underground passages.

Higginbottom's farm is near Ft. Witten, a former Indian stronghold. One theory is that the skeletons are those of members of a lost Indian tribe.

George Varn, Naval Stores Expert, Dies

Constitution State News Service. VALDOSTA, Oct. 12.—George W. Varn, 75, for many years a leading figure in the naval stores industry, died Sunday of a heart attack at his home here.

He had been in ill health for some time, but held controlling interest in a naval stores processing plant at Palatka, Fla., and with his brother, K. S. Varn, operated a 37,000-acre turpentine plantation at Hoboken, Ga.

He and his brother built the first Government-type processing plant at Hoboken, forerunner of many others of that type which have revolutionized the industry. This plant is still in operation.

Mr. Varn also had other extensive holdings. He owned the electric distribution system and the only ice business in Valdosta. He was in the naval stores storage business for 37 years.

Born in what is now Jeff Davis County, he moved to Valdosta in 1905. He was for some time in the automobile business and the auto finance business.

Survivors include a son, Lester Varn, of Jacksonville, Fla.; two grandsons, George W. Varn, II, of Palatka, and Lester Varn, of Jacksonville; a brother, K. S. Gen. Hamilton, 94, British Vet, Dies

LONDON, Oct. 12.—(P)—Gen. Sir Ian Hamilton, 94, Inspector General of Overseas Forces in the World War I and commander of Britain's 1915 Dardanelles Expeditionary Force, died at his home here Sunday.

He was a member of the noted French banking family, cousins to the English Rothschilds.

The Vichy Government of France on Sept. 6, 1940, deprived Gen. Hamilton of his French citizenship on the grounds he had left the country without government permission. Subsequently the government seized his art collections, his 1,800-acre estate in the Paris vicinity and other properties.

The baron visited the United States in 1920, 1930 and 1935. He was born in Paris July 26, 1872, son of the late Baron James De Rothschild, financier, philanthropist and man of letters. He was educated in medicine here.

Funeral services for Robert Knox Bettis, 66, of Nelson, who died in an Atlanta hospital Saturday, will be conducted at 2 p. m. today in the Nelson Methodist Church, with the Rev. D. S. Patterson officiating. Burial will be in Cool Springs Cemetery, near Tate.

Mr. Bettis, an employee of the Georgia Marble Company in Nelson, was a native of Forsyth County.

He was survived by his wife; two daughters, Mrs. B. F. Harbin, of Nelson, and Mrs. J. B. Dalton, of Hapeville; four sons, R. E. Bettis, of East Point; J. H. Bettis, of College Park; W. R. Bettis, of Marietta, and C. H. Bettis, of Atlanta; his mother, Mrs. Anna Bettis, of Atlanta; a sister, Mrs. Walter Taylor, of Atlanta; a brother, Roy H. Bettis, of Cumming.

Funeral services for Mrs. Rohlman Dies; Services Tomorrow

Mrs. Henry M. Rohlman, 73, formerly of Cincinnati, Ohio, died Sunday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. L. Cheek, 509 Montrose Dr., East Point, after a long illness.

Funeral services will be conducted at 11 a. m. Tuesday in the chapel of A. C. Hemperley & Sons, with the Rev. E. C. Wilson officiating. Burial will be in West View Cemetery.

Mr. Rohlman, the former Miss Emma Willerford, of Nashville, Tenn., had been a resident of Atlanta since December, 1946. She had lived in Cincinnati 27 years.

Surviving are her husband; another daughter, Mrs. Virginia Morris, of East Point; a sister, Mrs. J. P. Parnum, of Nashville; a brother, W. T. Willerford, of Miami, Fla., and a grandson.

Baron Rothschild Succumbs at 75

Lausanne, Switzerland, Oct. 12.—(P)—Baron Henri De Rothschild, 75, retired French-born doctor, capitalist and playwright, died Sunday. Death came at his estate, Castel Beau Cidre, in Jouxtenex, near Lausanne. Rothschild, a widower, had suffered from a heart ailment for about 10 years. The body will be taken to his native Paris Monday.

Rothschild spent most of the war years in Portugal, returning to Switzerland about two years ago.

He was a member of the noted French banking family, cousins to the English Rothschilds.
